Urban Heritage in Europe Gábor Sonkoly, 2023-04-17 Urban heritage which is part of the conceptual expansion of cultural heritage has become an extraordinarily complex notion Any aspect of urban life and experience can become heritage and this heritage is then continuously reinterpreted and exploited as a source not only for a city s identification but also for its cultural and economic innovation This book provides a detailed overview of Central European urban heritage It examines the key aspects of urban heritage tangible monumental natural landscape world heritage urban quarter and heritage experience dark heritage The regimes of urban heritage approach retraces 200 years of the development of European urban heritage to understand how it has become so significant and how it could integrate practically every area of urban existence The novelty of the book is the interpretation of this development as a process of successive and integrating regimes which are examined through the changing urban heritage agency and discourse Through the examples of European cities and towns such as Belgrade Budapest Gdansk Krakow Ljubljana Subotica Szentendre Vienna but also Edinburgh Nordic cities and Rome these changes reveal their inner complexities and become comparable in an interdisciplinary analysis Further a particular aspect of the history of these cities is revealed through the development of their own urban heritage The book is primarily aimed at academics researchers and postgraduate students of cultural and economic geography cultural history culture and heritage management modern and contemporary history as well as urban history planning and sociology Protecting and Preserving Our Heritage Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Culture, Media and Sport Committee,2006-04-19 Protecting and preserving our Heritage Vol 2 Written Evidence

Reading for the Young ,1896 Conserving the Railway Heritage Peter Burman,Michael Stratton,2014-03-05 Great Britain not only invented the main line railway but has also led the way in its preservation not just locomotives and carriages but also the buildings and structures that bear witness to the confidence of railway developers architects and engineers This book defines the nature of the railway heritage from signalboxes viaducts tunnels and locomotive depots and then discusses priorities and the best practice for its conservation The subject is a strongly topical one due to current concern over privatization the effects of planned high speed rail links and lively debates concerning the role of the enthusiast in railway preservation Pictish Progress ,2010-11-11 This publication is the culmination of an extended programme of conferences that have sought to mark the contribution of F T Wainwright to Pictish studies and in particular the 50th anniversary of The Problem of the Picts The book is firmly in the tradition of interdisciplinary scholarship Wainwright did so much to promote and brings together much fresh thinking on the archaeological art historical place name and historical understanding of Northern Britain in the second half of the first millennium AD Within a wider European framework it addresses questions of landscape material culture and mentalities revealing some of the different strategies by which the Picts made their world All the studies are accessibly presented to serve the interests of students teachers and anyone interested in the roots of European civilisation Contributors are Barbara E Crawford Nicholas Evans Iain Fraser James Fraser Meggen Gondek Stratford Halliday Andrew Heald Kellie Meyer Gordon Noble Robert D Stevick Simon Taylor and Sarah Winlow

Ethnographies of Archaeological Practice Matt Edgeworth,2006 Collection of original studies on the contemporary practice of archaeology as a professional and scholarly endeavor Jubilee lectures: a historical series Congregational union of England and Wales,1882 Assessing the Social Values of Heritage Elizabeth Robson,2025-03-27 Assessing the Social Values of Heritage considers how social values can be better understood and incorporated into the day to day work of managing and conserving the historic environment Drawing together major strands of thinking from critical heritage studies ethnography and social research and science and technology studies the book explores the theoretical and practical tensions that shifting discourses on value and contemporary significance have created for heritage practitioners Presenting seven case studies of social value assessments it discusses how qualitative methods and participatory approaches can be applied in a variety of real world contexts revealing the complex interactions that characterise these dynamic knowledge production processes The book provides unique insights into methods as more than technical processes that determine not only how but which knowledge is re produced shaping understandings of social values It concludes that bringing social values into heritage practice requires not only new methods and approaches but new ways of working with emergent understandings and multiple types of expertise In response to the challenges and the opportunities identified the concept of a methods assemblage is employed offering an effective model for more reflexive and inclusive future practice in this area Assessing the Social Values of Heritage provides the first systematic comparative review of methods for social values assessment It will be essential reading for practitioners academics and scholars engaged in the study of heritage participatory research and people centred methods Able Minds and Practiced Hands SallyM. Foster,2017-07-05 One hundred years on from J Romilly Allen and Joseph Anderson s 1903 landmark publication The Early Christian Monuments of Scotland twenty six essays explore the current state of knowledge of early medieval sculpture in Scotland They demonstrate the unique value of this material in contributing to our understanding of the society and people that created it between 1000 to 1500 years ago

Today's approaches and techniques offer new insights as well as great hope for what might be learnt from future study of familiar and new material alike. The essays exemplify the ever diversifying interdisciplinary approaches that are being taken to the study of early medieval sculpture. Key themes that emerge include the interdependence of conservation research and access, the need for a 21st century inventory of the sculpture, the breadth and value of the wide range of the research tools that now exist, conservation issues including the politics of how and where sculpture should be protected and the pressing need to identify priorities for action and what is probably the most important development over the last 100 years, the increase in awareness of the range of values and significances that attaches to early medieval sculpture including appreciation of context.

International Handbook of Underwater Archaeology Carol V. Ruppe, Jane F. Barstad, 2013-11-11

Although underwater archaeology has assumed its rightful place as an important subdiscipline in the field, the published literature has not kept pace with the rapid increase in the number of both prehistoric and historic underwater sites. The editors have assembled an internationally distinguished roster of contributors to fill this gap. In addition to both geographical and topical approaches, the chapters also focus on technology, law, public and private institutional roles and goals and the research and development of future technologies and public programs.

Ireland: The Matter of Monuments Colleen M. Thomas, Paula Murphy, 2024-04-19

This collection considers Irish monuments from the medieval to the modern era. The essays presented here acknowledge the plurality of values associated with Irish monuments. Taking a holistic approach to the topic, the volume contains contributions from art historians, archaeologists, historians, and heritage practitioners. The multidisciplinary and intersectoral contributions are placed in dialogue with one another, providing a discussion of Irish monuments that is unique in its comprehensiveness. The integration of research on early Irish monumental work with that of the more modern period, situating all Irish monuments on a continuum of shared concerns, is a significant pioneering element in this field. The range of perspectives represented in the book reflects the complexity of cultural heritage in contemporary life and opens the conversation to include a wider range of views. It will be a valuable resource for scholars, students, learned societies, public bodies, communities in Ireland, and for anyone interested in sculpture. An Open Access version of Kathleen James Chakraborty's chapter, 'New states and old statues: Ireland's monuments in an international context', is available on the Liverpool University Press website.

Development of Neolithic House Societies in Orkney Colin Richards, Richard Jones, 2016-04-30 Considering that Orkney is a group of relatively small islands lying off the northeast coast of the Scottish mainland its wealth of Neolithic archaeology is truly extraordinary An assortment of houses chambered cairns stone circles standing stones and passage graves provides an unusually comprehensive range of archaeological and architectural contexts Yet in the early 1990s there was a noticeable imbalance between 4th and 3rd millennium cal BC evidence with house structures and villages being well represented in the latter but minimally in the former As elsewhere in the British Isles the archaeological visibility of the 4th millennium cal BC in Orkney tends to be dominated by the monumental presence of chambered cairns or tombs In the 1970s Claude Lévi Strauss conceived of a form of social organization based upon the house societies (maisons) in order to provide a classification for social groups that appeared not to conform to established anthropological kinship structures In this approach the anchor point is the house understood as a conceptual resource that is a consequence of a strategy of constructing and legitimizing identities under ever shifting social conditions Drawing on the results of an extensive program of fieldwork in the Bay of Firth Mainland Orkney the text explores the idea that the physical appearance of the house is a potent resource for materializing the dichotomous alliance and descent principles apparent in the archaeological evidence for the early and later Neolithic of Orkney It argues that some of the insights made by Lévi Strauss in his basic formulation of societies (maisons) are extremely relevant to interpreting the archaeological evidence and providing the parameters for a social narrative of the material changes occurring in Orkney between the 4th and 2nd millennia cal BC The major excavations undertaken during the Cuween Wideford Landscape Project provided an unprecedented depth and variety of evidence for Neolithic occupation bridging the gap between domestic and ceremonial architecture and form exploring the transition from wood to stone and relationships between the living and the dead and the role of material culture The results are described and discussed in detail here enabling tracing of the development and fragmentation of societies (maisons) over a 1500 year period of Northern Isles prehistory
