Knockadoon Collection James Ian Montbriand, 2014-02-04 A collection of Irish and Irish like Ship Stories from the 19th century Told from the perspective of the ship's spirit The basis of these stories are true life events that have been carefully researched from 19th century Australian New Zealand and British newspaper archives The collection features such ships as the Cheetah Duchess of Leinster Shamrock and plenty of Victorias The protagonist for most of the stories is the cartoon character Vicky also referred to as the Knockadoon Knockout by many leprechauns The Prehistoric Settlement of Britain

Richard Bradley, 2014-10-24 This study first published in 1978 explores the evidence for pre Roman settlement in Britain Four aspects of the prehistoric economy are described by the author colonisation and clearance arable and pastoral farming transhumance and nomadism and hunting gathering and fishing These aspects have been brought together to formulate a structure which contains the evidence more naturally than chronological schemes that depend on assumed changes in population or technology The book draws upon environmental evidence and recent developments in archaeological fieldwork It also provides an extensive exploration of the published literature on the subject and the scope of the evidence Originally conceived as an ideas book rather than a final synthesis the author's intention throughout is to stimulate argument and research and not to replace one dogma with another

Europe and its Legacies Martijn Eickhoff,Daniel Modl,Katie Meheux,Erwin Nuijten,2023-08-14 This edited volume is dedicated to national socialist archaeology as a Europe wide phenomenon It analyses national socialist attempts to denationalize the archaeologies of European nations by creating a new unifying European archaeology on a racial basis From the beginning of the nineteenth century archaeology began to develop into an important force behind processes of nation building At the same time structures of transnational academic collaboration contributed strongly to the internal dynamics of the research field which was primarily organized on a national basis In those European countries that were confronted with national socialist occupation and repression between 1939 and 1945 these transnational archaeological networks were to prove crucial for the development of national socialist archaeological policies This volume will reveal how national socialist archaeology was to an extent valued positively in its time as highly innovative even influencing the archaeology of non occupied countries Although in the final instance it generally failed to displace the national archaeologies in Europe the volume also analyses the long term impact of national socialist rule on the development of European archaeology How did the attempts to create a unified European archaeology after 1945 continue to influence networks methods and terminologies institutional structures or popular representations of the early past Chapter 1 Is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via Springerlink Early Ireland Michael J.
