

Lost Energy

- Energy can be lost in two ways:
 - Energy can be lost when it is transformed from one form to another (for example, when a piece of wood is burned, the wood transforms into ash through the burning. The heat released from the fire is lost).
 - Energy can also be lost when it is transferred from one part of the system to another (for example, when you turn on a lawn mower, energy is being transferred from the fuel to the motor. Some energy is lost in the form of sound.).
