Kitten Clone Inside Alcatel Lucent Writers In Residence:

Kitten Clone Douglas Coupland, 2014-09-30 Douglas Coupland one of the world's biggest cultural brains takes an inside look at the global company that keeps us connected and wonders what all that connectivity is doing to our brains and our sense of ourselves as humans The incomparable Douglas Coupland reports from inside the corporate offices and science labs of Alcatel Lucent a globally influential business whose work is largely unknown to consumers Were it to vanish tomorrow he writes our modern world would grind to a halt The Internet would implode your Internet would implode Although his examination of the company is playful and fascinating in its own right Coupland's account is driven by his thoughtful reflections on the larger cultural and sociological significance of the transformative information technology Alcatel works on fiber wire microprocessors the Internet and mobile technologies And by a larger meditation about what the Internet is doing to us as it relentlessly colonizes the planet and our brains Like Coupland's best work Kitten Clone is a wildly entertaining yet penetrating encounter with the technological and cultural forces that surround us And also a surprising and unique exploration of a possible future
