Situation

You are adrift on a private yacht in the South Pacific. As a consequence of a fire of unknown origin, much of the yacht and its contents have been destroyed. The yacht is now slowly sinking. Your location is unclear because of the destruction of critical navigational equipment and because you and the crew were distracted trying to bring the fire under control. Your best estimate is that you are approximately one thousand miles south-southwest of the nearest land.

Below is a list of fifteen items that are intact and undamaged after the fire. In addition to these articles, you have a serviceable, rubber life raft with oars large enough to carry yourself, the crew, and all the items listed below. The total contents of all survivors' pockets are a package of cigarettes, several books of matches, and five one-dollar bills.

Your task is to rank the fifteen items below in terms of their importance to your survival. Place the number 1 by the most important item, the number 2 by the second most important, and so on through number 15, the least important. You will do this twice: once alone (10 min.) and once as a group (20 min.).

Radionuclides in the Environment David A. Atwood, 2013-02-19 Nuclear energy is the one energy source that could meet the world s growing energy needs and provide a smooth transition from fossil fuels to renewable energy in the coming decades and centuries It is becoming abundantly clear that an increase in nuclear energy capacity will and probably must take place However nuclear energy and the use of radionuclides for civilian and military purposes lead to extremely long lived waste that is costly and highly problematic to deal with Therefore it is critically important to understand the environmental implications of radionuclides for ecosystems and human health if nuclear energy is to be used to avoid the impending global energy crisis The present volume of the EIC Books series addresses this critical need by providing fundamental information on environmentally significant radionuclides The content of this book was developed in collaboration with many of the authors of the chapters Given the enormity of the subject the Editor and the Authors had to be judicious in selecting the chapters that would appropriately encompass and describe the primary topics particularly those that are of importance to the health of ecosystems and humans The resulting chapters were chosen to provide this information in a book of useful and appropriate length Each chapter provides fundamental information on the chemistry of the radionuclides their occurrence and movement in the environment separation and analyses and the technologies needed for their remediation and mitigation The chapters are structured with a common systematic format in order to facilitate comparisons between elements and groups of elements About EIC Books The Encyclopedia of Inorganic Chemistry EIC has proved to be one of the defining standards in inorganic chemistry and most chemistry libraries around the world have access either to the first or second print edition or to the online version Many readers however prefer to have more concise thematic volumes targeted to their specific area of interest This feedback from EIC readers has encouraged the Editors to plan a series of EIC Books focusing on topics of current interest They will appear on a regular basis and will feature leading scholars in their fields Like the Encyclopedia EIC Books aims to provide both the starting research student and the confirmed research worker with a critical distillation of the leading concepts in inorganic and bioinorganic chemistry and provide a structured entry into the fields covered This volume is also available as part of Encyclopedia of Inorganic Chemistry 5 Volume Set This set combines all volumes published as EIC Books from 2007 to 2010 representing areas of key developments in the field of inorganic chemistry published in the Encyclopedia of Inorganic Chemistry Find out more

Vulnerability and Adaptation Assessments Ron Benioff, Sandra Guill, Jeffrey Lee, 2012-12-06 The possible impacts of global climate change on different countries has led to the development and ratification of the Framework Convention on Climate Change FCCC and has a strong bearing on the future sustainable development of developing countries and countries with economies in transition The preparation of analytical methodologies and tools for carrying out assessments of vulnerability and adaptation to climate change is therefore of prime importance to these countries Such assessments are needed to both fulfill the reporting requirements of the countries under the FCCC as well as to prepare their own climate change adaptation and mitigation plans The vulnerability and adaptation assessment guidelines prepared by the U S Country Studies Program bring together all the latest knowledge and experience from around the world on both vulnerability analysis as well as adaptation methodologies It is currently being applied successfully by scientists in over fifty countries from all the regions of the globe This guidance is being published to share it with the wider scientific community interested in global climate change issues This guidance document has two primary purposes To assist countries in making decisions about the scope and methods for their vulnerability and adaptation assessments To provide countries with guidance and step by step instructions on each of the basic elements of vulnerability and adaptation assessments
