Welte, 2016-07-04 London November 1888 The affidavits of three witnesses results of an autopsy in total contradiction with major testimonies and many other unequivocal details suggest that the mutilated body found in Miller's Court on the morning of November 9 1888 was not Mary Jane Kelly's Forget a theory based on a DNA analysis made on a providential shawl never registered as an evidence from a crime scene the results of the tests have since been refuted by the very best leading specialists Philippe R WELTE only focuses on serious facts and registered evidences including the most disturbing ones concealed by the police In addition his theory the first and only one to bring a personal motive for each murder proves that the victims were not killed coincidentally Prefaced by French writer and television producer Pierre BELLEMARE this book unveils a fascinating theory until then never explored which delivers the only possible answers about the man behind the mask of the Ripper Jack the Ripper Philippe Welté, 2015-07-21 London november 9 1888 Some time after 8 00 AM Caroline Maxwell spots her pretty neighbor at the corner of Miller's Court She's a bit surprised to meet her at that time for the young woman doesn't usually get up that early She seems to be waiting for someone Caroline decides to go and greet her The two women speak for a couple of minutes then Caroline leaves the Court This would be quite a banal story if the young woman Caroline Maxwell talked to wasn't Mary Jane Kelly Jack the Ripper's last victim When he arrived on the crime scene at 2 00PM Dr Bond estimated the time of death between 1 00 AM and 2 00 AM In other words the victim was already dead for at least six hours at the time Caroline Maxwell met Mary Jane Puzzled Inspector Frederick Abberline will try to convince Mrs Maxwell that she made a confusion about the date But the witness sticks on her positions unaware that two other persons claim to have seen Mary Jane in the morning of the same day In his memoirs fifty years later Walter Dew will comment If Mrs Maxwell had been a sensation seeker one of those women who live for the limelight it would have been easy to discredit her story She was not She seemed a sane and sensible woman and her reputation was excellent In one way at least her version fitted into the facts as known We knew that Marie had been drinking the previous night and as this was not a habit of hers illness the next morning was just what might have been expected The untold story focuses on the fascinating mystery about Mary Jane Kelly *Jack the Ripper the Secret of Mary Jane K.
