British Columbia by the Road Ben Bradley,2017-06-07 In British Columbia by the Road Ben Bradley takes readers on an unprecedented journey through the history of roads highways and motoring in British Columbia s Interior a remote landscape composed of plateaus and interlocking valleys soaring mountains and treacherous passes Challenging the idea that the automobile offered travellers the freedom of the road and a view of unadulterated nature Bradley shows that an array of interested parties boosters businessmen conservationists and public servants manipulated what drivers and passengers could and should view from the road When it came to roads and highways planners and builders had two concerns grading or paving a way through the wilderness and opening pathways to new parks and historic sites They understood that the development of a modern road network would lead to new ways of perceiving BC and its environment

Although cars and roads promised freedom they offered drivers a curated view of the landscape that shaped the province's image in the eyes of residents and visitors alike How Do You Do Gold Panning in British Columbia, 1987 Moon British Columbia Andrew Hempstead, 2014-04-15 Canada resident and avid outdoorsman Andrew Hempstead gives you his unique perspective on British Columbia from dining at the best of Vancouver's 3 000 restaurants and cafés to skiing and snowboarding on the world class slopes of Whistler Blackcomb. Workers, Capital, and the State in British Columbia Rennie Warburton, David Coburn, 2011-11-01 This collection of essays offers a comprehensive examination of the working class experience in British Columbia and contains essential background knowledge for an understanding of contemporary relations between government labour and employees. It treats workers' relationship to the province's resource base, the economic role of the state, the structure of capitalism, the labour market and the influence of ethnicity and race on class relations. Using different analytical categories and based on primary research, the individual studies provide new assessments of the development of capitalist relations of production, the way new economic developments changed old and traditional cultures, the connection between the demand for labour and the immigration policy, the impact of technology on work relations and the various responses of labour to the policies of the state and capital groupings. Articles focusing on episodes from the 1870s to the present deal with major staple industries such as the early fur trade, fishing, mining and forestry and with the struggle of labourers against their employers in communities such as New Westminster and Fraser Mills and in specific sectors such as telecommunications and education. Many of the analyses show that ethnicity acts both as a focus of integration and resistance against external forces in the larger society and as a point of division and antagonism internal to the working class. The activities of the working class and its relationships to other parts of society are of primary importance in explaining social and economic change in the province and in the country. Workers Capital and the State in British Columbia will be of interest to students of class, labour and community relations.
