Imagining Identity in New Spain Magali M. Carrera, 2003-04-01 Reacting to the rising numbers of mixed blood Spanish Indian Black African people in its New Spain colony the eighteenth century Bourbon government of Spain attempted to categorize and control its colonial subjects through increasing social regulation of their bodies and the spaces they inhabited The discourse of calidad status and raza lineage on which the regulations were based also found expression in the visual culture of New Spain particularly in the unique genre of castapaintings which purported to portray discrete categories of mixed blood plebeians Using an interdisciplinary approach that also considers legal literary and religious documents of the period Magali Carrera focuses on eighteenth century portraiture and castapaintings to understand how the people and spaces of New Spain were conceptualized and visualized She explains how these visual practices emphasized a seeming realism that constructed colonial bodies elite and non elite as knowable and visible At the same time however she argues that the chaotic specificity of the lives and lived conditions in eighteenth century New Spain belied the illusion of social orderliness and totality narrated in its visual art Ultimately she concludes the inherent ambiguity of the colonial body and its spaces brought chaos to all dreams of order
