Douma, Phillip W. Magness, 2017-12-21 Historians working in the classical liberal tradition believe that individual decision making and individual rights matter in the making of history History written in the classical liberal tradition emerged largely in the nineteenth century when the field of history was first professionalized in Europe and the Americas Professional historical research was then imbued with liberal values which included rigorous attention to the sources historicist suspicion of an ultimate mover an honest and dispassionate rational outlook and humility towards what could be known Above all liberals wanted to chart the history of liberty warn against threats to liberty and defend it in an evolving political world They believed history was real and that it had lessons to teach but that these lessons could not provide sufficient knowledge to predict the future or reorganize society around a central plan This book demonstrates how the classical liberal tradition in historical writing persists to this day but how it is often neglected and due for renewal The book contrasts the classical liberal view on history with conservative progressive Marxist and post modern views Each of the eleven chapters address a different historical topic from the development of classical liberalism in nineteenth century America to the the history of civil liberties and civil rights that stemmed from this tradition Authors give particular attention to the importance of social and economic analysis Each contributor was chosen as an expert in their field to provide a historiographical overview of their subject and to explain what the classical liberal contribution to this historiography has been and should be Authors then provide guidance towards possible tools of analysis and related research topics that future historians working in the classical liberal tradition could take up The authors wish to call upon other historians to recognize the important contributions to historical understanding that have come and can be provided by the insights of classical liberalism A Reference Guide to Television's Bonanza Bruce R. of Illinois and History of Sangamon County Newton Bateman, Paul Selby, 1912 BBC licence fee settlement and annual report Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Culture, Media and Sport Committee, 2011-05-19 The Culture Media and Sport Committee says that the main outcomes of the BBC Trust's strategic review do not move the BBC on to the extent required by current circumstances and that the incoming Chairman will have much to get grips with The new licence fee agreement was reached unexpectedly in October 2010 between the Department for Culture Media and Sport and the BBC but without any time for wider consultation with viewers or Parliament The Committee believes the agreement reached is a reasonable one but the process undermined confidence in both the Government's and the BBC's commitment to transparency and accountability On the partnership between BBC and S4C it is unclear how S4C can retain its independence under the new arrangements It is extraordinary that the Government and the BBC should agree such wide ranging changes without consultation or giving S4C any notice or say at all The Committee is particularly concerned that National Audit Office still does not have the promised access to conduct independent assessments of the BBC s value for money The Committee is also disappointed that banded information on talent salaries is still not in the public domain The BBC opened itself to predictable ridicule with the decision to hire a migration manager who had to commute from the United States to manage the transition to the new Salford site The report concludes that big questions remain over how radically the BBC needs to reconfigure both content and delivery in the years ahead
