Building Migrant Cities in the Gulf Florian Wiedmann, Ashraf M. Salama, 2019-07-25 Human history has seen many settlements transformed or built entirely by expatriate work forces and foreigners arriving from various places Recent migration patterns in the Gulf have led to emerging airport societies on unprecedented scales Most guest workers both labourers and mid to high income groups perceive their stay as a temporary opportunity to earn suitable income or gain experience This timely book analyses the essential characteristics of this unique urban phenomenon substantiated by concrete examples and empirical research Both authors have lived and worked in the Gulf including Qatar Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates during various periods between 2006 and 2014 They explore Gulf cities from macro and interconnected perspectives rather than focusing solely on singular aspects within the built environment As academic architects specialised in urbanism and the complex dynamics between people and places the authors build new bridges for understanding demographic and social changes impacting urban transformations in the Gulf

Africa's Cities Somik Vinay Lall, J. Vernon Henderson, Anthony J. Venables, 2017-02-09 Cities in Sub Saharan Africa are experiencing rapid population growth Yet their economic growth has not kept pace Why One factor might be low capital investment due in part to Africa's relative poverty Other regions have reached similar stages of urbanization at higher per capita GDP This study however identifies a deeper reason African cities are closed to the world Compared with other developing cities cities in Africa produce few goods and services for trade on regional and international markets To grow economically as they are growing in size Africa's cities must open their doors to the world They need to specialize in manufacturing along with other regionally and globally tradable goods and services And to attract global investment in tradables production cities must develop scale economies which are associated with successful urban economic development in other regions Such scale economies can arise in Africa and they will if city and country leaders make concerted efforts to bring agglomeration effects to urban areas Today potential urban investors and entrepreneurs look at Africa and see crowded disconnected and costly cities Such cities inspire low expectations for the scale of urban production and for returns on invested capital How can these cities become economically dense not merely crowded How can they acquire efficient connections And how can they draw firms and skilled workers with a more affordable livable urban environment From a policy standpoint the answer must be to address the structural problems affecting African cities Foremost among these problems are institutional and regulatory constraints that misallocate land and labor fragment physical development and limit productivity As long as African cities lack functioning land markets and regulations and early coordinated infrastructure investments they will remain local cities closed to regional and global markets trapped into producing only locally traded goods and services and limited in their economic growth
