How Organizations Develop Activists Hahrie Han, 2014 How Organizations Develop Activists Hahrie Han, 2014 Why are some civic associations better than others at getting and keeping people involved in activism From MoveOn.org to the National Rifle Association Health Care for America Now to the Sierra Club membership based civic associations constantly seek to engage people in civic and political action What makes some more effective than others Using in person observations surveys and field experiments this book compares organizations with strong records of engaging people in health and environmental politics to those with weaker records To build power civic associations need quality and quantity or depth and breadth of activism They need lots of people to take action and also a cadre of leaders to develop and execute that activity Yet models for how to develop activists and leaders are not necessarily transparent This book provides these models to help associations build the power they want and support a healthy democracy In particular the book examines organizing mobilizing and lone wolf models of engagement and shows how highly active associations blend mobilizing and organizing to transform their members motivations and capacities for involvement This is not a simple story about the power of offline versus online organizing Instead it is a story about how associations can blend both online and offline strategies to build their activist base In this compelling book Hahrie Han explains how civic associations can invest in their members and build the capacity they need to inspire action

Social Movements and Media Jennifer S. Earl, Deana A. Twitter and Tear Gas Zeynep Tufekci, 2017-05-16 A firsthand account and incisive analysis of modern protest revealing internet fueled social movements greatest strengths and frequent challenges To understand a thwarted Turkish coup an anti Wall Street encampment and a packed Tahrir Square we must first comprehend the power and the weaknesses of using new technologies to mobilize large numbers of people An incisive observer writer and participant in today's social movements Zeynep Tufekci explains in this accessible and compelling book the nuanced trajectories of modern protests how they form how they operate differently from past protests and why they have difficulty persisting in their long term quests for change Tufekci speaks from direct experience combining on the ground interviews with insightful analysis She describes how the internet helped the Zapatista uprisings in Mexico the necessity of remote Twitter users to organize medical supplies during Arab Spring the refusal to use bullhorns in the Occupy Movement that started in New York and the empowering effect of tear gas in Istanbul's Gezi Park. These details from life inside social movements complete a moving investigation of authority, technology, and culture and offer essential insights into the future of governance. Tactics and Emancipation in the Age of Authoritarian Neoliberalism Nicholas Kiersey, William W. Sokoloff, 2023-04-11. This book calls for new attention to non-traditional forms of emancipatory tactics and welcomes to the fold all manner of everyday expressions of anti-authoritarianism. Capitalism has taken the mask off. Elites feel less obliged to pursue strategies of popular legitimization. The traditional institutions of representative democracies are thus hollowing out and stand before us corrupted and broken. In this milieu, the prospects for a democratic entering of the state are seen as increasingly fantastical, and the Left is advised instead to adopt a more tactical posture. These expressions can run the gamut from the more obviously theatrical antics of The Yes Men to those of black bloc and other direct action militant groups already well known from their interventions in the cities of Berkeley and Charlottesville. This volume addresses this problem via the concept of tactics. The point is less to prescribe an ideal range of tactics but rather to consider a broader range of resistances from the struggles of indigenous peoples to those who seek refuge from gender or citizenship-based discrimination to those who seek to defend black lives from militarized policing. Tactics and Emancipation in the Age of Authoritarian Neoliberalism will be a beneficial read for students and scholars of Critical Political Science, International Relations, and International Political Economy. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of New Political Science. Prisms of the People Hahrie Han, Elizabeth McKenna, Michelle Oyakawa, 2024-05-31. Grassroots organizing and collective action have always been fundamental to American democracy but have been burgeoning since the 2016 election as people struggle to make their voices heard in this moment of societal upheaval. Unfortunately, much of that action has not had the kind of impact participants might want, especially among movements representing the poor and marginalized who often have the most at stake when it comes to rights and equality. Yet some instances of collective action have succeeded. What's the difference between a movement that wins victories for its constituents and one that fails? What are the factors that make collective action powerful? Prisms of the People addresses those questions and more. Using data from six movement organizations, including a coalition that organized a 104-day protest in Phoenix in 2010 and another that helped restore voting rights to the formerly incarcerated in Virginia, Hahrie Han, Elizabeth McKenna, and Michelle Oyakawa show that the power of successful movements most often is rooted in their ability to act as prisms of the people, turning participation into political power just as prisms transform white light into rainbows. Understanding the organizational design choices that shape the people, their leaders, and their strategies can help us understand how grassroots groups achieve their goals. Linking strong scholarship to a deep understanding of the needs and outlook of activists, Prisms of the People is the perfect book for our moment for understanding what's happening and propelling it forward. The Wiley Blackwell Companion to Social Movements David A. Snow, Sarah A. Soule, Hanspeter Kriesi, Holly J. McCammon, 2023-01-04. The most up-to-date and thorough compendium of scholarship on social movements

State of Empowerment Carolyn Barnes, 2020-02-21 On weekday afternoons dismissal bells signal not just the end of the school day but also the beginning of another important activity: the federally funded after school programs that offer tutoring, homework help, and basic supervision to millions of American children. Nearly one in four low income families enroll a child in an after school program. Beyond sharpening students' math and reading skills, these programs also have a profound impact on parents. In a surprising turn, especially given the long history of social policies that leave recipients feeling policed, distrusted, and alienated, government funded after school programs have quietly become powerful forces for political and civic engagement by shifting power away from bureaucrats and putting it back into the hands of parents. In State of Empowerment, Carolyn Barnes uses ethnographic accounts of three organizations to reveal how interacting with government funded after school programs can enhance the civic and political lives of low income citizens.

Short Circuiting Policy Leah Cardamore Stokes, 2020-03-18 In 1999, Texas passed a landmark clean energy law, beginning a groundswell of new policies that promised to make the US a world leader in renewable energy. As Leah Stokes shows in Short Circuiting Policy, however, that policy did not lead to momentum in Texas, which failed to implement its solar laws or clean up its electricity system. Examining clean energy laws in Texas, Kansas, Arizona, and Ohio over a thirty year time frame, Stokes argues that organized combat between advocate and opponent interest groups is central to explaining why states are not on track to address the climate crisis. She tells the political history of our energy institutions, explaining how fossil fuel companies and electric utilities have promoted climate denial and delay. Stokes further explains the limits of policy feedback theory, showing the ways that interest groups drive retrenchment through lobbying, public opinion, political parties, and the courts. More than a history of renewable energy policy in modern America, Short Circuiting Policy offers a bold new argument about how the policy process works and why seeming victories can turn into losses when the opposition has enough.

Technology Activism and Social Justice in a Digital Age offers a close look at both the present nature and future prospects for social change. In particular, the text explores the cutting edge of technology and social change while discussing developments in social media, civic technology, and leaderless organizations, as well as more traditional approaches to social change. It effectively assembles a rich variety of perspectives to the issue of technology and social change; the featured authors are academics and practitioners representing both new voices and experienced researchers who share a common devotion to a future that is just, fair, and supportive of human potential. They come from the fields of social work, public administration, journalism, law, philanthropy, urban affairs, planning, and education, and their work builds upon 30 plus years of research. International Relations Corneliu Bjola, Markus Kornprobst, 2023-11-03 This book analyses how digital transformation disrupts established patterns of world politics, moving International Relations (IR) increasingly towards Digital International Relations. This volume examines technological, agential, and ordering processes that explain this fundamental change. The contributors trace how digital disruption changes the international world we live in, ranging from security to economics, from human rights advocacy to deep fakes, and from diplomacy to international law. The book makes two sets of contributions. First, it shows that the ongoing digital revolution profoundly changes every major dimension of international politics. Second, focusing on the interplay of technology, agency, and order, it provides a framework for explaining these changes. The book also provides a map for adjusting the study of international politics to studying International Relations, making a case for upgrading, augmenting, and rewiring the discipline. Theory follows practice in International Relations, but if the discipline wants to be able to meaningfully analyse the present and come up with plausible scenarios for the future, it must not lag too far behind major transformations of the world that it studies. This book facilitates that theoretical journey. This book will be of much interest to students of cyber politics, politics and technology, and International Relations. Transnational Advocacy in the Digital Era

Nina Hall, 2022-05-02 Winner International Communication Book Award, International Studies Association Shortlisted 2023, Susan Strange Best Book Prize, Honorable Mention 2023, Information Technology and Politics Best Book Award. Transnational Advocacy in the Digital Era explores the role of digital advocacy organizations, a major new addition to the international arena. These organizations derive power and influence from their ability to rapidly mobilize members on line and off line, and are shaping public opinion on many issues, including climate change, trade, and refugees. Research in international relations (IR) has highlighted the influence of non-governmental organizations which wield power through their expertise and long-term moral commitment to an issue. However, no IR scholars have explored the spread and power of digital advocacy organizations. Nina Hall provides a detailed investigation of how these organizations have harnessed digitally

networked power and established new advocacy strategies They can quickly respond to the most salient issues of the day and mobilize large memberships to put pressure on politicians She finds that these organizations operate in a globalized world but tackle transnational problems by focusing on national targets This new generation of activists have formed a strong transnational network but still see the state as the locus of power
