

(A) FUNDAMENTALS OF ELECTRICAL LOADS

■ CONTINUOUS MONITORING OF ELECTRICAL LOAD

Power and operating requirements of electrical loads are described below to help users select required generator output for the electrical loads they intend to use or to determine proper loads for a given generator output.

The following factors must be considered for the assessment:

1998

The current necessary for an electrical load is self-evident when it is indicated on the machine or in the machine specifications. An appliance can be used if its current is lower than the rated current of the generator and it cannot be used if its current is higher than the rated current.

[illegible]

Power consumption is also an accurate index for selection. With this method, only power factor should be taken into consideration since the efficiency of the load has been included in the power consumption figure. The power factor values with loads function:

$$\text{Average Cost} = \frac{\text{Power consumption (W)}}{\text{Power factor}}$$

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

	Proper Value
Single phase induction motor	0.45 to 0.6
Three phase induction motor	0.15 to 0.3
Universal and synchronous motor	0.15 to 0.3
Transformer	0.45 to 0.6
Autotransformer, ring and shaded pole	0.25
AC capacitor	0.45 to 0.6

(E) Knowing input from the power factor and efficiency

The capacity of an electrical load is often indicated by power (W) or horsepower (hp), either of which is power consumption. These indications represent 'output', not 'input' which means actual power consumption of the load. Input can be calculated from output using the following formula:

© 2004 Blackwell Publishing Ltd, Journal of Internal Medicine 255: 105–112

Power factor = 0.8 Usually assumed to be 0.8, although it depends on load as described above.

Efficiency = 85% Assumed to be 85% on the average, although this also depends on load.

[illegible]

Described above (1)-(3) is the current which is consumed during operation. Also important is the current which flows at the start. This current, although momentary, is usually much larger than the operating current. Called locked rotor current.

Although starting current differs with machine, the required starting current is approximately three times the operating current, when the machine is loaded at the time of starting (e.g., with a submerged pump). It is noted in water. Therefore, for already-loaded machines or spin phase type motors with a large starting current, the current requirement is disadvantageous. Most generators have a capacity to deliver a large intermittent power (which is different from the rated current indicated) to allow a margin for starting such machines. However,

That is the reason why the machines should be started without a load or two or more machines should be started separately.
