Housing Finance Reform: Continuation of the 30-Year Fixed-Rate Mortgage Housing, and Urban Affairs, Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs United States Senate, 2012-07-10 Today's hearing will examine the pros and cons of the Federal Government continuing basically to subsidize the 30 year fixed rate mortgage During the Great Depression the Federal Government established direct and indirect subsidies for 30 year fixed rate mortgages For many Americans the 30 year fixed rate mortgage has made homeownership possible yet the failure of Fannie and Freddie and the 169 bailout of those institutions demonstrate that the Federal Government's support for the 30 year mortgage comes with a cost Today's hearing should provide some insight into how the Federal Government's support for the 30 year fixed rate mortgage impacts consumers and taxpayers For example is the 30 year fixed rate mortgage always the best option for consumers Is the prepayment option included in these 30 year fixed rate mortgages truly free And what has the subsidy of this product already cost the American taxpayer And can this product be offered without that subsidy Housing Finance Reform United States. Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, 2013 Homeownership and America's Financial Underclass Mechele Dickerson, 2014-06-30 Why does America have a love affair with homeownership For many buying a home is no longer in their best interest and may harm their children's educational opportunities This book argues that US leaders need to re evaluate housing policies and develop new ones that ensure that all Americans have access to affordable housing whether rented or owned After describing common myths the book shows why the circumstances now faced by America's financial underclass make it impossible for them to benefit from homeownership because they cannot afford to buy homes It then exposes the risks of home buying while brown or black discussing US policies that made it easier for whites to buy
