Rumi's poems are beloved for their touching perceptions of humanity and the Divine. To display the major themes of Rumi's work, each of the eighteen chapters in this anthology are arranged topically such as The Inner Work, The Ego, Animal Passion for God, Praise and Purity, uncovering a deep and timeless understanding of Sufism and mysticism. Also included is a biography of Rumi by Andrew Harvey and an introductory essay by Kabir Helminski on the art of translating Rumi's work into English. The Spiritual Surgeon: Can the water of a polluted stream wash away the dirt? Can human knowledge sweep away the ignorance of the sensual self? How does a sword fashion its own hilt? Go, entrust your wound to a surgeon. For flies will gather around the wound until it can't be seen. These are your selfish thoughts. And all you dream of owning. The wound is your own dark hole. Mathnawi I 3221-3224 translated by Kabir Helminski and Camille Helminski. Poets and Pahlavans Marcello Di Cintio, 2010-07-16. Marcello Di Cintio prepares for his journey into the heart of Iran with the utmost diligence. He takes lessons in Farsi, researches Persian poetry, and sharpens his wrestling skills by returning to the mat after a gap of some years. Knowing that there is a special relationship between heroic poetry and the various styles of traditional Persian wrestling, he sets out to discover how Iranians reconcile creativity with combat. From the moment of his arrival in Tehran, the author is overwhelmed by hospitality. He immerses himself in male company in tea houses, conversing while smoking the qalyun or water pipe. Iranian men are only too willing to talk, especially about politics. Confusingly, he is told conflicting statements that all Iranians love George Bush, that all Iranians hate George Bush, that life was infinitely better under the Shah, that the mullahs swept away the corruption of the Shah's regime and made life better for all. Once out of Tehran, he learns where the traditional forms of wrestling are practised. His path through the country is directed by a search for the variant disciplines and local techniques of wrestling and a need to visit sites and shrines associated with the great Persian poets: Hafez, Ferdosi, Omar Khayyam, Attar, Shahriyar, and many others. Everywhere his quest leads him, he discovers that poetry is loved and quoted by everyone, from taxi drivers to students. His engagement with Iranian culture is intimate; he wrestles, sometimes reluctantly, when invited, samples illegal home brew alcohol, attends a wedding, joins mourners, learns a new way to drink tea, and attempts to observe the Ramadan fast, though not a Muslim himself. Though he has inevitable brushes with officialdom, he never feels in danger, even when he hears that a Canadian photo journalist has apparently been beaten to death in a police cell during the author's visit. The outraged and horrified reaction of those around him to this violent act tightens the already close bond he has formed with the Persians. His greatest frustration is that he is unable to converse freely with Iranian women, aware that an important part of his picture of Iran is thus absent. Yet the mosaic of incidents, encounters, vistas, conversations, atmospheres, and acutely observed sights, smells, and moments creates a detailed impression of a country and society that will challenge most, if not all, preconceptions.

Emerson for the Twenty-first Century Barry Tharaud, 2010. While previous collections of Emerson essays have tended to be a sort of stock-taking or retrospective look at Emerson scholarship, this collection follows a more prospective trajectory for Emerson studies based on the recent increase

Romanticism and Philosophy Sophie

Laniel-Musitelli,Thomas Constantinesco,2015-05-22 This volume brings together a wide range of scholars to offer new perspectives on the relationship between Romanticism and philosophy The entanglement of Romantic literature with philosophy is increasingly recognized just as Romanticism is increasingly viewed as European and Transatlantic yet few studies combine these coordinates and consider the philosophical significance of distinctly literary questions in British and American Romantic writings The essays in this book are concerned with literary writing as a form of thinking investigating the many ways in which Romantic literature across the Atlantic engages with European thought from 18th and 19th century philosophy to contemporary theory The contributors read Romantic texts both as critical responses to the major debates that have shaped the history of philosophy and as thought experiments in their own right This volume thus examines anew the poetic philosophy of Wordsworth Coleridge Blake Shelley and Clare also extending beyond poetry to consider other literary genres as philosophically significant such as Jane Austen s novels De Quincey s autofiction Edgar Allan Poe s tales or Emerson s essays Grounded in complementary theoretical backgrounds and reading practices the various contributions draw on an impressive array of writers and thinkers and challenge our understanding not only of Romanticism but also of what we have come to think of as literature and philosophy
