Berlioz and His World Francesca Brittan, Sarah Hibberd, 2024-08-05 A collection of essays and short object lessons on the composer Hector Berlioz published in collaboration with the Bard Music Festival Hector Berlioz 1803 1869 has long been a difficult figure to place and interpret Famously in Richard Wagner's estimation he hovered as a transient marvelous exception a composer woefully and willfully isolated In the assessment of German composer Ferdinand Hiller he was a fleeting comet who does not belong in our musical solar system the likes of whom would never be seen again For his contemporaries as for later critics Berlioz was simply too strange and too noisy too loud too German too literary too cavalier with genre and form and too difficult to analyze He was in many ways a composer without a world Berlioz and His World takes a deep dive into the composer's complex legacy tracing lines between his musical and literary output and the scientific sociological technological and political influences that shaped him Comprising nine essays covering key facets of Berlioz's contribution and six short object lessons meant as conversation starters the book reveals Berlioz as a richly intersectional figure His very difficulty his tendency to straddle the worlds of composer conductor and critic is revealed as a strength inviting new lines of cross disciplinary inquiry and a fresh look at his European and American reception Photography's

Orientalism Ali Behdad, Luke Gartlan, 2013-10-01 The Middle East played a critical role in the development of photography as a new technology and an art form Likewise photography was instrumental in cultivating and maintaining Europe's distinctively Orientalist vision of the Middle East As new advances enhanced the versatility of the medium nineteenth century photographers were able to mass produce images to incite and satisfy the demands of the region's burgeoning tourist industry and the appetites of armchair travelers in Europe In this way the evolution of modern photography fueled an interest in visual contact with the rest of the world Photography's Orientalism offers the first in depth cultural study of the works of European and non European photographers active in the Middle East and India focusing on the relationship between photographic literary and historical representations of this region and beyond The essays explore the relationship between art and politics by considering the connection between the European presence there and aesthetic representations produced by traveling and resident photographers thereby contributing to how the history of photography is understood
