Handbook Of Communication And Aging Research Leas Communication:

Handbook of Communication and Aging Research Jon F. Nussbaum, Justine Coupland, 2004-04-12 This second edition of the Handbook of Communication and Aging Research captures the ever changing and expanding domain of aging research Since it was first recognized that there is more to social aging than demography gerontology has needed a communication perspective Like the first edition this handbook sets out to demonstrate that aging is not only an individual process but an interactive one The study of communication can lead to an understanding of what it means to grow old We may age physiologically and chronologically but our social aging how we behave as social actors toward others and even how we align ourselves with or come to understand the signs of difference or change as we age are phenomena achieved primarily through communication experiences Synthesizing the vast amount of research that has been published on communication and aging in numerous international outlets over the last three decades the book s contributors include scholars from North America and the United Kingdom who are active researchers in the perspectives covered in their particular chapter Many of the chapters work to deny earlier images of aging as involving normative decrement to provide a picture of aging as a process of development involving positive choices and providing new opportunities A recurring theme in many chapters is that of the heterogeneity of the group of people who are variously categorized as older aged elderly or over 65 The contributors review the literature analytically in a way that reveals not only current theoretical and methodological approaches to communication and aging research but also sets the future agenda This handbook will be of great interest to scholars and researchers in gerontology developmental psychology and communication and in this updated edition will continue to play a key role in the study of communication and aging Women's Narratives of Health Disruption and Illness Jennifer M. Hawkins, Peter M. Kellett, 2019-06-28 Through vivid and engaging narrative accounts written and collected by women Women s Narratives of Health Disruption and Illness Within and Across Their Life Stories explores how women experience the health disruptions and illnesses that span their lives The collection examines how women s broader and ongoing life stories impact and are impacted by health disruptions and illnesses Organized into three parts the chapters explore Beginnings in which health disruptions and illnesses impact early life motherhood and where early choices create the origins of health issues that impact later life Middles which explores health experiences in and around middle age or from the standpoint in middle age looking back and forth and Endings which explores narratives of ageing and end of life communication Personal revealing and often beautiful the women s narratives featured in this book will invite the reader into the stories and lives of others and toward the reflection learning and personal transformation that comes from truly connecting with the experiences of others This book will be helpful for scholars of communication health women s studies family studies and sociology Life-Span Communication Loretta L. Pecchioni, Kevin B. Wright, Jon F. Nussbaum, 2006-04-21 This innovative text emphasizes how communicative processes develop are maintained and change throughout the life span

Communication as Comfort Sandra L. Ragan, Elaine M. Wittenberg-Lyles, Joy Goldsmith, Sandra Sanchez Reilly, 2008-05-15 This scholarly volume explores communication at the end of life emphasizing palliative care and the circumstances of patients in need of such consideration

Suspense Peter Vorderer, Hans Jurgen Wulff, Mike Friedrichsen, 2013-12-16 This volume begins with the general assumption that suspense is a major criterion for both an audience's selection and evaluation of entertaining media offerings This assumption is supported not only by the popularity of suspenseful narratives but also by the reasons users give for their actual choice of media contents Despite this there is no satisfying theory to describe and explain what suspense actually is how exactly it is caused by films or books and what kind of effect it has on audiences This book's main objective is to provide that theory by bringing together scholars from different disciplines who are working on the issue The editors' goal is to reflect the state of the art as much as it is to highlight and encourage further developments in this area There are two ways of approaching the problem of describing and explaining suspense an analysis of suspenseful texts or the reception process Researchers who follow the more text oriented approach identify the uncertainty of the narrative outcome the threat or danger for the protagonist the play with time delay or other factors as important and necessary for the production of suspense The more reception oriented scholar focuses on the cognitive activities of audiences readers' expectations the curiosity of onlookers their emotions and their relationships with the protagonists A correspondence between the two seems to be quite difficult though necessary to determine Both perspectives are important in order to describe and explain suspense Thus the editors utilize the thesis that suspense is an activity of the audience reader onlooker etc that is related to specific features and characteristics of the text books films etc

Their question is What kind of relation The answer comes from finding out how why and which elements of the text cause effects that are experienced as suspense Scholars from semiotics literary criticism cultural studies and film theory assess the problem from a text oriented point of view dealing primarily with the how and which Other scholars present the psychological perspective by focusing on the cognitive and emotional processes that underlie viewers experience of suspense that is the reception theory tries to answer the question of why suspenseful texts may be experienced as they are

Kathryn Greene, Valerian J. Derlega, Gust A. Yep, Sandra Petronio, 2003-06-20 As the HIV epidemic enters its third decade it remains one of the most pressing health issues of our time Many aspects of the disease remain under researched and inadequate attention has been given to the implications for the relationships and daily lives of those affected by HIV Disclosing an HIV diagnosis remains a decision process fraught with difficulty and despite encouraging medical advances an HIV diagnosis creates significant anxiety and distress about one's health, self-identity and close relationships. This book provides an overarching view of existing research on privacy and disclosure while bringing together two significant areas: self-disclosure as a communication process and the social relational consequences of HIV/AIDS. The unifying framework is communication privacy management and the focus of this volume is on private voluntary relational disclosure as opposed to forced or public disclosure. Utilizing numerous interviews with HIV patients and their families, the authors examine disclosure in a variety of social contexts including relationships with intimate partners, families, friends, health workers, and coworkers. Of note are the examinations of predictors of willingness to disclose HIV infection, the message features of disclosure, and the consequences of both disclosure and non-disclosure. This volume, with its personal exercises and sources of additional information, offers an invaluable resource for individuals living with HIV and their significant others as well as for professionals in the fields of health communication, social and health psychology, family therapy, clinical and counseling psychology, relationship research, infectious disease, and social service.

Here to Make Friends Hope Kelaher, 2020-01-28 Skip the small talk and learn how to build a supportive community, engage with new people, and cultivate authentic, long-lasting friendships at every stage of life. It sometimes seems like everyone has a big, happy, fulfilling social life full of lifelong friendships, except you. How do you move from mutual acquaintances to real friends? Here to Make Friends has the answers to all of these questions and more. Written by a licensed therapist, this book is packed full of helpful advice and tips to overcome social anxiety and start building a stronger social circle, such as: Tips for moving past small talk; Advice for getting out of your own head; Suggestions for fun and memorable friend dates; Strategies for connecting meaningfully with other people. Everyone wants to feel connected. Here to Make Friends is the perfect companion for moving past the sometimes lonely post-school stage and into lasting, fulfilling friendships.

Aging, Media, and Culture C. Lee Harrington, Denise Bielby, Anthony R. Bardo, 2014-06-18 The intersections of aging, media, and culture are underexplored given trends in population aging, rapid increases in the mediation of everyday life, and the growing cultural significance of media consumption at the global level. This book brings together an international collection of critical scholars, both well established and up and coming, from the various academic disciplines that share a common interest in the future study of aging and media. This anthology of original articles integrates aging theory and media studies through a study of core issues including the media's influence on the construction of old age, the reciprocal influence of aging on media industries, age-based identities in a mediated world, issues of gender and sexuality in an aging society, and the practical implications of a more integrated approach between the two fields. The chapters explore the intersections between aging and media in the realms of advertising, marketing, television, film, music, celebrity, and social media, among others.
