Failing Families, Failing Science

Elaine Ecklund, Anne E. Lincoln, 2016-08-30 Work life in academia might sound like a dream summers off year long sabbaticals the opportunity to switch between classroom teaching and research Yet when it comes to the sciences life at the top U S research universities is hardly idyllic Based on surveys of over 2 000 junior and senior scientists both male and female as well as in depth interviews Failing Families Failing Science examines how the rigors of a career in academic science makes it especially difficult to balance family and work Ecklund and Lincoln paint a nuanced picture that illuminates how gender individual choices and university and science infrastructures all play a role in shaping science careers and how science careers in turn shape family life They argue that both men and women face difficulties though differently in managing career and family While women are hit harder by the pressures of elite academic science the institution of science and academic science in particular is not accommodating possibly not even compatible for either women or men who want to raise families Perhaps most importantly their research reveals that early career academic scientists struggle considerably with balancing their work and family lives This struggle may prevent these young scientists from pursuing positions at top research universities or further pursuing academic science at all a circumstance that comes at great cost to our national science infrastructure In an era when advanced scientific research and education is more important than ever Failing Families Failing Science presents a compelling inside look at the world of the university scientists who make it possible and what universities and national science bodies can do to make a difference in their lives Women's Lives Claire A. Etaugh, Judith S. Crouter, Alan Booth, 2009-02-24 Sociological essays on policies that could help employees balance their workplace responsibilities with their other responsibilities Policies examined encompass organizational policies municipal policies state policies and federal policies Workers studied include salaried professionals and low wage part time hourly workers Provided by publisher Generational Diversity at Work Emma Parry, 2017-09-29 Over the past decade much attention has been paid to the apparent differences in consumption preferences or workplace attitudes and behaviours across generations Within Western economies such as the USA UK and Australia it is commonly assumed that there are now four generations in the workplace namely Veterans born 1925 1942 Baby Boomers 1943 1960 Generation X 1961 1981 and Generation Y 1982 2000 The concept of generational differences at work is one that has recently been adopted by practitioners as a basis on which to design human resource management and career management practices However there has been some concern in academic circles about the validity of the notion of generations and the evidence base that supports it There is therefore a need for new perspectives and methodological approaches to investigating generational differences at work in order to establish the validity and value of generations as an axis of diversity Generational Diversity at Work New Research Perspectives will address this need by presenting and discussing research into generational diversity that adopts a range of new theoretical perspectives or methodological approaches This book is designed as a first step in addressing the need to critically examine the theoretical and empirical basis for generational differences and to provide some new empirical data in this area Using Organizational Culture to Resolve Business Challenges Reyes Ruiz,
