circumstances under which both fields can benefit from each other Even though it is often accepted that terrorism is a form of political violence it is also quite frequent that research on the topic is dismissed when it is approached with conflict analysis frames More importantly policy approaches continue to inhibit obstruct and reject frameworks that are concerned with the transformation and resolution of terrorist conflicts partly because they see the state as the ultimate referent object to be secured At the same time peace and conflict studies seem to be excessively focused on problem solving approaches which overemphasise the role of parity during negotiations and misdiagnose the distribution of power both within conflicts as well as within conflict management resolution and or transformation approaches This book was published as a special issue of Critical Studies on Terrorism

Fragments of Trauma and the Social Production of Suffering , Marilyn Charles, Michael O'Loughlin, 2014-11-05
Fragments of Trauma and the Social Production of Suffering Trauma History and Memory offers a kaleidoscope of perspectives that highlight the problem of traumatic memory Because trauma fragments memory storytelling is impeded by what is unknowable and what is unspeakable Each of the contributors tackles the problem of narrativizing memory that is constructed from fragments that have been passed along the generations When trauma is cultural as well as personal it becomes even more invisible as each generation's attempts at coping push the pain further below the surface Consequently that pain becomes increasingly ineffable haunting succeeding generations In each story the contributors offer there emerges the theme of difference a difference that turns back on itself and makes an accusation Themes of knowing and unknowing show the terrible toll that trauma takes when there is no one with whom the trauma can be acknowledged and worked through In the face of utter lack of recognition what might be known together becomes hidden Our failure to speak to these unaspirated truths becomes a betrayal of self and also of others In the case of intergenerational and cultural trauma we betray not only our ancestors but also the future generations to come In the face of unacknowledged trauma this book reveals that we are confronted with the perennial choice of speaking or becoming complicit in our silence Cultural Competence in Applied Psychology Craig L. Frisby, William T. O'Donohue, 2018-07-25 The first volume of its kind this provocative book evaluates the construct of cultural competence from multiple perspectives At the intersection of diverse disciplines and domains contributors argue for greater clarity in understanding the cultural competence construct a deeper level of analysis as to its multifaceted components and call for concrete practical objectives and science based means of measurement Serious nuanced discussion addresses challenges strengths and limitations of current cultural competence practice in terms of sociocultural concepts e g race ethnicity and practical concepts e g sensitivity in the therapeutic relationship treatment efficacy In addition contributors identify future directions for research training and practice with the potential to spur the further evolution of this clinically important construct This timely book Critiques the cultural competence construct and its evaluation as it is currently disseminated within applied psychology Compares and contrasts how cultural competence is defined within clinical school and counseling psychology Analyzes difficulties and challenges in understanding the cultural competence construct as evaluated through the lens of closely related fields outside of applied psychology Spotlights complexities in cultural competence issues pertaining to specific populations Sets out implications for education and training offering a detailed outline for an ideal college course in cultural competence With this level of reasoning and rigor Cultural Competence in Applied Psychology is sure to stimulate long overdue dialogue and debate among professionals across a wide variety of fields such as clinical psychology social work child and social psychology psychotherapy school psychology and counseling
