Analia Arevalo,Juliana Baldo,Fernando González-Perilli, Agustin Ibanez,2016-03-09 In recent years work surrounding theories of embodiment and the role of the putative mirror neuron system MNS in humans has gained considerable attention If humans have developed a network of neurons that fire in response to other beings actions as has been shown in macaques this system could have vast implications for all kinds of cognitive processes unique to humans such as language learning empathy and communication in general The goal of tapping into and understanding such a system is a fascinating yet challenging one One form of embodiment embodied linguistics suggests that the way we process linguistic information is linked to our physical experience of the concept conveyed by each word The interaction between these cognitive systems i e language and motor processing may occur thanks to the firing of neurons making up the MNS The possible interdependence between different cognitive systems has implications for healthy as well as pathological profiles and in fact work in recent years has also explored the role of embodiment and or the MNS in clinical populations such as stroke Parkinson s Disease Alzheimer s Disease and Autism among others Research on embodiment and or the MNS has been approached with a number of different methodologies but the results obtained with these different methodologies have not been entirely consistent generating doubts regarding the theories The question has been raised as to what this line of inquiry can gain from the types of evidence contributed by functional neuroimaging methods carried out with healthy volunteers versus behavioral or lesion symptom mapping methods employed with neurologically compromised individuals Of particular interest are the clinical applications of this line of research If indeed a system exists which reflects a tight link between for example the human language and motor systems then the obvious challenge is to tap into this system to create useful therapies that can provide rehabilitation where damage has occurred This Research Topic brought together work conducted with healthy and patient populations using several behavioral and imaging techniques as well as insightful commentaries and opinion pieces We believe the combined work of the participating authors is an important contribution to this intriguing line of research and an excellent point of reference for future work      Intimate Partner Violence in New Orleans Ashley Baggett, 2017-10-13 Ashley Baggett uncovers the voices of abused women who utilized the legal system in New Orleans to address their grievances from the antebellum era to the end of the nineteenth century. Poring over 26 000 records Baggett analyzes 421 criminal cases involving intimate partner violence physical or emotional abuse of a partner in a romantic relationship revealing a significant demand among women the community and the courts for reform in the postbellum decades. Before the Civil War some challenges and limits to the male privilege of chastisement existed but the gendered power structure and the veil of privacy for families in the courts largely shielded abusers from criminal prosecution. However the war upended gender expectations and increased female autonomy leading to the demand for and brief recognition of women's right to be free from violence. Baggett demonstrates how postbellum decades offered a fleeting opportunity for change before the gender and racial expectations hardened with the rise of Jim Crow. Her findings reveal previously unseen dimensions of women's lives both inside and outside legal marriage and women's attempts to renegotiate power in relationships. Highlighting the lived experiences of these women Baggett tracks how gender race and location worked together to define and redefine gender expectations and legal rights. Moreover she demonstrates recognition of women's legal personhood as well as differences between northern and southern states trajectories in response to intimate partner violence during the nineteenth century.
