Historic Waters and Historic Rights in the Law of the Sea Clive R. Symmons,2019-03-27 The issue of historic rights and historic waters has long been a problematic area in the law of the sea where even basic definitions have been vague and interchangeably used in the past The first edition of this book was entitled Historic Waters in the Law of the Sea A Modern Re Appraisal and concentrated as the title implies on the doctrine of historic waters The title of this expanded new edition has been broadened to take account of the important clarifications as to the doctrine of historic maritime claims generally particularly historic rights in the narrow sense which fall short of sovereignty claims These latter rights such as they now are are discussed in depth in the new text This development has come about of course because of the Award of the Arbitral Tribunal in Philippines v China in 2016 This decision has for the first time in a judicial setting rationalised the terminology in this area of the law of the sea and most importantly has clarified the close interaction of historic rights with the Law of the Sea Convention This new edition discusses the latter issue passim showing that much of the former customary law doctrine has now been overridden by the Convention

Creating the Mediterranean Tarek Kahlaoui,2018-01-16 In Creating the Mediterranean Maps and the Islamic Imagination Tarek Kahlaoui treats the subject of the Islamic visual representations of the Mediterranean It tracks the history of the Islamic visualization of the sea from when geography was created by the Islamic state s bureaucrats of the tenth century C E located mainly in the central Islamic lands to the later men of the field specifically the sea captains from the fourteenth to the sixteenth centuries C E located in the western Islamic lands A narrative has emerged from this investigation in which the metamorphosis of the identity of the author or mapmaker seemed to be changing with the rest of the elements that constitute the identity of a map its reader or viewer its style and structure and its textual content

California, Oregon, and Washington Archaeological Resource Study: History, 1990 Cultural Techniques Bernhard Siegert, 2015-05-01 In a crucial shift within posthumanistic media studies Bernhard Siegert dissolves the concept of media into a network of operations that reproduce displace process and reflect the distinctions fundamental for a given culture Cultural Techniques aims to forget our traditional understanding of media so as to redefine the concept through something more fundamental than the empiricist study of a medium's individual or collective uses or of its cultural semantics or aesthetics Rather Siegert seeks to relocate media and culture on a level where the distinctions between object and performance matter and form human and nonhuman sign and channel the symbolic and the real are still in the process of becoming The result is to turn ontology into a domain of all that is meant in German by the word Kultur Cultural techniques comprise not only self-referential symbolic practices like reading writing counting or image making The analysis of artifacts as cultural techniques emphasizes their ontological status as in between shifting from first-order to second-order techniques from the technical to the artistic from object to sign from the natural to the cultural from the operational to the representational Cultural Techniques ranges from seafaring drafting and eating to the production of the sign signal distinction in old and new media to the reproduction of anthropological difference to the study of trompe l'oeils grids registers and doors Throughout Siegert addresses fundamental questions of how ontological distinctions can be replaced by chains of operations that process those alleged ontological distinctions within the ontic Grounding posthumanist theory both historically and technically this book opens up a crucial dialogue between new German media theory and American postcybernetic discourses
