Hiroshima Immigrants in Canada, 1891-1941 Michiko Midge Ayukawa, 2008-07-01 Hiroshima Immigrants in Canada 1891 1941 is a fascinating investigation of Japanese migration to Canada prior to the Second World War It makes Japanese language scholarship on the subject available for the first time and also draws on interviews diaries community histories biographies and the author's own family history Starting with the history of the feudal fiefs of Aki and Bingo which were merged into Hiroshima prefecture Ayukawa describes the political economic and social circumstances that precipitated emigration between 1891 and 1941 She then examines the lives and experiences of those migrants who settled in western Canada Interviews with three generations of community members as well as with those who never emigrated supplement research on immigrant labour the central role of women and the challenges Canadian born children faced as they navigated life between two cultures This book is a must read for scholars of migrations diaspora and transnationalism and will also be of great interest to general readers who wish to learn more about the lives and experiences of Japanese Canadians The Oxford Handbook of Asian American History David Yoo, Eiichiro Azuma, 2016 The Oxford Handbook of Asian American History brings together 27 essays that engage the state of the field with historiographically informed but creative approaches to this diverse and vibrant area The chapters trace Asian American history from the beginning of the migration flows toward the Pacific Islands and the American continent to Japanese American incarceration and Asian American participation in World War II from the experience of exclusion violence and racism to the social and political activism of the late twentieth century The authors explore many of the key aspects of the Asian American experience including politics economy intellectual life the arts education religion labor gender family urban development and legal history Mary Kitagawa Karen M. Inouye, 2024-11-05 This book tells the story of Japanese Canadian activist Mary Kitagawa In the aftermath of the Pearl Harbor bombing Mary was one of roughly 22 000 Nikkei uprooted from their homes on the Pacific coast and forbidden to return to western British Columbia until long after World War II had officially ended In the decades that followed Mary and her family navigated financial precarity and ostracism but also found ways to pursue both economic stability and political engagement Beginning with Mary's grandparents who were among the earliest immigrants to Canada from Japan this book tracks the family's experiences and those of the larger Nikkei Canadian community from the late 1800s to the present Concentrating on the interpersonal and intergenerational bonds that shaped Kitagawa Karen M Inouye describes the increasingly activist sensibilities that arose from transformative relationships with family members other members of the Nikkei Canadian community Doukhobors First Nations peoples and white allies as well as in response to the anti Asian racism that Kitagawa encountered in many forms throughout her life Inouye presents the Nikkei Canadian experience not as a linear triumph over a single adversity but as a continual process of identity formation in relation to obstacles and opportunities suffering and joy isolation and connection Oral History, Education, and Justice Kristina R.

Llewellyn, Nicholas Ng-A-Fook, 2019-09-12 This book addresses oral history as a form of education for redress and reconciliation. It provides scholarship that troubles both the possibilities and limitations of oral history in relation to the pedagogical and curricular redress of historical harms. Contributing authors compel the reader to question what oral history calls them to do as citizens, activists, teachers, or historians in moving towards just relations. Highlighting the link between justice and public education through oral history, chapters explore how oral histories question pedagogical and curricular harms and how they shed light on what is excluded or made invisible in public education. The authors speak to oral history as a hopeful and important pedagogy for addressing difficult knowledge, exploring significant questions such as how do community-based oral history projects affect historical memory of the public? What do we learn from oral history in government systems of justice versus in the political struggles of non-governmental organizations? What is the burden of collective remembering and how does oral history implicate people in the past? How are oral histories about difficult knowledge represented in curriculum from digital storytelling and literature to environmental and treaty education? This book presents oral history as a form of education that can facilitate redress and reconciliation in the face of challenges and bring about an awareness of historical knowledge to support action that addresses legacies of harm. Furthering the field on oral history and education, this work will appeal to academics, researchers, and postgraduate students in the fields of social justice education, oral history, Indigenous education, curriculum studies, history of education, and social studies education. From Slave Girls to Salvation Shelly D. Ikebuchi, 2015-11-10 From its origins as a project to rescue Chinese prostitutes and slave girls from a life of supposed depravity, the Chinese Rescue Home became a feature of the moral and racial landscape of Victoria, a place where the Methodist Women's Missionary Society attempted to reform Chinese and Japanese girls and women in part by teaching them domestic skills meant to ease their integration into Western society. Between 1886 and 1923, over four hundred Chinese and Japanese women sheltered in the home. Yet despite the significance of this iconic institution, little has been written on its history. From Slave Girls to Salvation draws on a rich collection of archival materials to uncover the organizational hierarchies as well as the religious and racial tropes which permeated the home. In doing so, it expands our understanding of the complex interplay of gender, race, and class in BC during this time period. Entangling Migration History Benjamin Bryce, Alexander Freund, 2015-06-23 This collection uses current cross-boundary theories in applied case studies to better understand how people, institutions, and ideas permeate geopolitical lines in North America. Racism and Anti-Racism in Canada David Este, 2020-07-10T00:00:00Z Multiculturalism is regarded as a key feature of Canada's national identity. Yet despite an increasingly diverse population, racialized Canadians are systematically excluded from full participation in society through personal and structural forms of racism and discrimination. Race and Anti-Racism in Canada provides readers with a critical examination of how racism permeates Canadian society and articulates the complex ways to bring about equity and inclusion, both individual and systemically. Transnational Agency and Migration Stefan

Köngeter, Wendy Smith, 2015-07-16 Migrants both spatially and mentally no longer settle in only one national territory but interact or move across borders regularly profoundly challenging the nation state and the image of society as a container This volume explores the ways in which migrants activists and professionals connect social worlds across national boundaries through a variety of social practices The contributions from various disciplines anthropology economics political and social sciences educational studies and social work illuminate the meaning of agency in situations where the capabilities of transnational actors are constrained by nation states their borders and social institutions Based on a relational understanding of transnational agency which builds upon new insights and developments within transnational studies and network theory this compilation of chapters presents transnational processes and developments in and across various regions of the globe in East Asia the Americas the EU Southeast Asia Africa and Australia in the borderlands of Mexico and the US in the transatlantic space of the 19th century fin de siècle world in order to demonstrate the importance of gaining assisting and expanding agency in transnational contexts

Witness to Loss Jordan Stanger-Ross, Pamela Sugiman, 2017-10-18 When the federal government uprooted and interned Japanese Canadians en masse in 1942 Kishizo Kimura saw his life upended along with tens of thousands of others But his story is also unique as a member of two controversial committees that oversaw the forced sale of the property of Japanese Canadians in Vancouver during the Second World War Kimura participated in the dispossession of his own community In Witness to Loss Kimura's previously unknown memoir written in the last years of his life is translated from Japanese to English and published for the first time This remarkable document chronicles a history of racism in British Columbia describes the activities of the committees on which Kimura served and seeks to defend his actions Diverse reflections of leading historians sociologists and a community activist and educator who lived through this history give context to the memoir inviting readers to grapple with a rich and contentious past More complex than just hero or villain oppressor or victim Kimura raises important questions about the meaning of resistance and collaboration and the constraints faced by an entire generation Illuminating the difficult even impossible circumstances that confronted the victims of racist state action in the mid twentieth century Witness to Loss reminds us that the challenge of understanding is greater than that of judgment
