Money cannot buy the things that Frenchmen love We are not a race of hucksters says the Seigneur Fournel is delighted to see the Seigneur s fingers twitch with fury But since you can t buy the things you love how do you get them When a spider makes love to his lady he dances before her to infatuate her and then snatches her Is yours the way of the spider With a snarl Louis Racine springs forward and strikes Fournel in the face then snatches two antique swords from the wall Throwing one on the floor before the Englishman he runs to the door locks it and swings around the sword firmly in his hand and his face white with rage In tales such as Parpon the Dwarf and Times Were Hard in Pontiac we see French Canada through the eyes of Gilbert Parker who called it a land without poverty and yet without riches too well educated to have a peasantry and too poor to have an aristocracy Initially written as realistic sketches for the Illustrated London News and based upon true accounts the author was told while in Quebec Parker found himself in his efforts to capture the spirit of the country moving in later tales into the realms of fantasy symbolism and mysticism

The Lane That Had No Turning Gilbert

Parker,2006-03-01 1913 Part Eleven of Eighteen Volumes Gilbert Canadian born novelist and politician his literary reputation lies primarily on his earlier descriptive dramatic and historic Canadian stories He moved to England in 1889 and later served in Parliament Parker explains that in this edition of his work each volume will have a special introduction setting forth as far as possible the relation of each work to the author to its companion works and to the scheme of his literary life The Lane That Had No Turning and other associated tales concerning the people of Pontiac together with certain parables of a province are written in keeping with the happily simple and uncomplicated life of French Canada as the author knew it then The stories in this volume such as The Tragic Comedy of Annette are written with simple realism while at the end of the volume are nine fantasies or stories titled The Parables of the Provinces While Parker believes these fantasies also possess the spirit of French Canada they are more or less mystical in nature See other titles by this author available from Kessinger Publishing
