The large, dark stone structures are arranged in their characteristic circular formation, with some stones standing upright and others lying flat. The sky above is filled with numerous small, bright white stars, creating a sense of vastness and cosmic scale. The overall mood is contemplative and mysterious.

Meaning and Being in Myth Norman Austin, 2010-11-01 Norman Austin has organized his analysis of classical Greek myths around Lacan's dichotomy between ineffable Being and the meanings imposed upon Being by culturally determined signifiers The primary signifiers in myth the gods as projections of contradictory meanings impel human consciousness in contradictory directions toward heroic self realization on the one hand and into the fear guilt and despair resulting from failure on the other The gods both reveal and occlude that which they signify the signified ultimately Being itself Austin includes one chapter on the father's ghost in Shakespeare's Hamlet and another on Albert Camus's The Stranger as examples of the power of mythical archetypes to reveal and occlude Being even when the apparatus of gods has been excluded Despite their pessimism ancient myths also affirm that the paradoxes are not insoluble Austin concludes by outlining the profile of the Universal Self intimated in myth religion and philosophy as the joint venture of the world realized in consciousness consciousness realized in consciousness and consciousness realized in the world those who dare to dream can reclaim it The New Church Herald and Monthly Repository ,1856 Art in the Archaeological Imagination Dragos Gheorghiu,2020-02-02 The book discusses the creative mental processes of the prehistoric and contemporary artists as well as of the archaeologists studying them from the perspective of cognition and art. Its intention is to highlight the artistic thinking within the imagination of the archaeologist as well as to discuss the concepts of imagination and art in the current scientific research. From this perspective the book suggests a type of research closer to the complexity of the human nature and human thinking that can approach cultural and psychological subjects ignored until now. It is hoped that one of the results of the book will be the formulation of new meanings for art from the perspective of archaeology. Responding to the recent ongoing growing interest in the art archaeology interaction the editor has carefully selected papers written by a series of eminent European and American scholars with a background in ancient and contemporary art, symbolic thinking, semiotics and archaeological imagination with the intention of introducing new arguments and discussions into the emerging art archaeology discourse. The book is composed of three parts: Art and the ancient mind, Experiencing the ancient mind and Exploring the act of creation.
