Magic Light and the Dynamic Landscape Jeanine Leech, 2014-07-08 It has been said many times that photography is painting with light or that photography is all about light For Jeanine Leech the idea of painting with light is a passion She uses it as a brush for color texture and dimension to create dynamic and expressive images In this book Leech details her techniques for finding and using the best light to create breathtaking landscape images To get that special moment you are often chasing the light In landscape photography there are moments of defining light It can be a single moment that may only last a second when the light is just perfect These moments don't happen every day but when they do one frame can tell the story with more visual impact than all the others The ability to improvise to stop and get the light when these moments occur randomly is the difference between producing a standard photo and something that truly stand out This book provides the basic principles of photography necessary for capturing this magic successfully Starting with a rundown of the equipment that Leech uses and explaining the core concepts of photography the book proceeds to detail shooting at different times of day From the first light at dawn through midday and onto dusk Leech provides stunning examples of how each type of light can be used Each photo in the book is accompanied by the camera settings used to capture it True magic light is rare It happens in a fleeting moment not to be repeated again lasting only a few minutes or seconds Its quality is so unique that it changes the color appearance and ultimately the mood of the subjects it falls upon Part three of the book focuses on the different types of landscapes First weather is covered A photo shoot in the Smoky Mountains shows how attention to detail and setting can make the shot The light and the weather change in mere seconds As Leech points out knowing the basics of photography and how to work your equipment quickly is essential Each of the stunning photos in the book is a testament to this After that Leech discusses how she chooses different landscapes Intimate landscapes can be found anywhere Sometimes making artistic choices like only focusing on a small portion of a setting provides an image with greater impact Finally the book covers the use of polarizer's various filters and multiple

Essential Elements of Portrait Photography Bill Israelson, 2014-09-22 Creating an idealized image of a subject is a portrait photographer's job. However, the approach is not quite formulaic. From one subject to the next and one day to the next, there are different goals and scenarios. On Monday, you may be tasked with photographing your subjects under cloudy skies on a beach. On Tuesday, you may need to downplay your client's wide hips in the studio. On Wednesday, you may want to create dramatic lighting for an actor's portfolio on stage. Every day, there is a unique challenge to meet, often under varying conditions. So how do you make a magically good portrait during every shoot? In this book, Bill Israelson shows you how to tackle the problem of creating a great portrait of your every client. Beginning with a discussion on equipment essentials, breaking the discussion into two topics: gear for studio work and portable equipment for location work. Next, you'll learn simple posing strategies for making women, men, kids, and groups look their best in any presentation. You'll learn how to position the body from head to toe to maximize assets and downplay common problem areas. Lighting is the backbone of every image. In the studio, you have complete control over every facet of the lighting, from its hardness or softness to its color, temperature, and direction. On location, the basic principles of good lighting still apply, but the quality and quantity of light is subject to change. Israelson shows you how to harness the available light and supplement it when needed to create saleable images every time. With straightforward, jargon-free text and a wide range of image examples, this book will help you quickly learn how to improve your portrait results to create client-pleasing portraits every time.

Photograph the Face, 2014-06-10 The most essential factor in creating a successful salable portrait is properly lighting the face. But every face is different, and each face type requires a different style of lighting. It is imperative that the photographer realizes this. From the subject's complexion and facial size to their clothing, hair color, and setting, there are many aspects to consider when lighting a client. The photographer must also take into consideration what type of product the client wants: senior portrait, bridal portrait, glamour, or professional. Each one of these requires something different. Properly and efficiently addressing all of these factors will set you and your business apart from the competition. In this book, Smith focuses on teaching photographers how to conceptualize and produce portraits that will please the client. He emphasizes that he is not creating his own artistic vision, but that he is crafting what the client wants. That is not to say the results aren't artful and creative. Both of those things are very important, as Smith shows, but the main goal as a successful professional photographer is to create portraits that the subject wants to buy. Smith advises photographers to be aware of a subject's self-image when creating the portrait, being sure not to light them in a manner that is unflattering or distorted. Success in creating salable portraits relies as much on understanding people and the way our self-image functions as it does on understanding the proper techniques of lighting. First, Smith discusses the differences between face types and what to be aware of when setting up the lighting for each. Proper metering and placement of light source are essential to controlling your highlights, your shadowing, and the transition area in between Establishing a system for modifying your lighting setup for each subject is emphasized The concept of Camera Sight or visualizing the finished photo ahead of time to look for potential problem areas is very important As Smith admits this skill comes with experience Where he once had to take many test shots to pick out these issues he is now able to see them before he shoots a single frame This is a skill that develops over time with training and practice The author then explains the differences between shooting in a studio and shooting on location both indoors and outdoors Different equipment is required for each scenario but the equipment used for shooting outdoors can even differ depending on the time of day While the most ideal natural light occurs just after sunrise or just before sunset most customers do not want to have their portraits taken at 5am or late in the day So the photographer needs to be prepared to shoot in the harsh midday sun In addition to lighting the face the photographer must find usable light to illuminate the background properly Smith details the lighting system he uses for outdoor portraiture and presents it in the context of his shooting experiences While studio shoots provide greater levels of comfort and consistency compared to a location shoot there are still many things required to get that perfect shot Properly applying fill accent light and shadowing are just as important in the studio as they are on location Understanding the concepts of traditional lighting allows the photographer to consistently create studio portraits that will please any customer The most important part of the face to light properly is the eyes Smith explains in detail what factors a successful photographer must consider to get the final portrait every client wants Whether it is a difference in the size of the client's eyes or ears asymmetrical lips or a crooked nose there are ways to light these to correct the differences Using artistry and creative vision to adapt from the comfort of studio shoots to the complicated and diverse demands of location shoots Smith provides the reader with the tools to capture what the client wants every time
