Hand Preference

and Hand Ability Miriam Ittyerah,2013-09-18 This volume adds new dimension and organization to the literature of touch and the hand covering a diversity of topics surrounding the perception and cognition of touch in relation to the hand No animal species compare to humans with regard to the haptic or touch sense so unlike visual or auditory cognition we know little about such haptic cognition We do know that motor skills play a major role in haptics but senses like vision do not determine hand preference or hand ability It seems also that the potential ability to perform a task may be present in both hands and evidence indicates that the hand used to perform tactile tasks in blind or in sighted conditions is independent of one's hand preference This book will be useful for those in education and robotics and can serve as a general text focusing on touch and developmental psychology
