

The background of the book cover is a close-up of the European Union flag, featuring a blue field with twelve yellow stars arranged in a circle. The stars are partially visible, with some appearing as full stars and others as partial shapes at the edges of the frame. The flag's texture and the way the stars are positioned create a sense of depth and movement.

The European Convention on Human Rights Andreea Maria Roşu, 2015-11-21 Protecting human rights has a high cost but it is not a luxury Sir N Bratza former President of the European Court of Human Rights The present book aims at exploring if this statement of principle corresponds to the real approach of the European Court of Human Rights when examining complaints submitted by citizens affected by the austerity measures Does the European Convention on Human Rights provide for a minimum standard of protection of economic and social rights Which is the impact of the economic crisis upon the national margin of appreciation of states in the protection of economic and social rights Is this national margin of appreciation radically influenced by the recent European Union s policies Does the Strasbourg Court have a more strict approach towards a higher protection of the applicant when the hard core civil and political human rights are affected by the austerity measures The book focuses on the relevant recent case law of the Strasbourg Court in order to provide an answer to these questions

The Application of the European Convention on Human Rights to Military Operations Stuart Wallace, 2019-04-11 An analysis of how the European Convention on Human Rights applies to military operations

A Constitutionalist Approach to the European Convention on Human Rights Lisa Sonnleitner, 2022-04-21 This book presents a new constitutional argument for the legitimacy of evolutive interpretation of the ECHR It constructs a model in which evolutive and static constitutional principles are balanced with each other The author argues that there are three possible interpretive approaches in time sensitive interpretations of the ECHR but that only one of them is justifiable by reference to the constitutional principles of the ECHR in every single case. The ECHR's constitutional principles either require an evolutive or static interpretation or they do not establish a preference relation at all which leads to a margin of appreciation of the member states in the interpretation of the Convention. The balancing model requires the determination of the weights of the competing evolutive and static constitutional principles. For this purpose the author defines weighting factors for determining the importance of evolutive or static interpretation in a concrete case.

Human Rights in the Council of Europe and the European Union Steven Greer, Janneke Gerards, Rose Slowe, 2018-03-29 Protocol to the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms, The Right to Equality in European Human Rights Law Charilaos Nikolaidis, 2014-07-25 A right to equality and non discrimination is widely seen as fundamental in democratic legal systems. But failure to identify the human interest that equality aims to uphold reinforces the argument of those who attack it as morally empty or unsubstantiated and weakens its status as a fundamental human right. This book argues that an understanding of the human interest which equality aims to uphold is feasible within the jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) and the European Court of Justice (ECJ). In comparing the evolution of the prohibition of discrimination in the case law of both Courts, Charilaos Nikolaidis demonstrates that conceptual convergence within the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR) and the EU on the issue of equality is not as far as it might appear initially. While the two bodies of equality law are extremely divergent as to the requirements they impose, their interpretation by the international judiciary might be properly analysed under a common light to emphasise the substantive dimension of equality in European Human Rights law. The book will be of great use and interest to scholars and students of human rights, discrimination law and European politics.

Legal Aspects of Planetary Defence Irmgard Marboe, 2021-09-27 Winner of the 2022 International Academy of Astronautics (IAA) Social Sciences Book Award. Impacts by asteroids or comets on Earth may lead to natural disasters of catastrophic dimensions, one of the most devastating having caused the extinction of the dinosaurs 66 million years ago. Space agencies and other actors are increasingly dedicated to the development of technology to predict and mitigate such risks. This book addresses legal and policy aspects of planetary defence activities aiming at the mitigation of Near Earth Objects (NEO) impact threats. These include responsibility and liability for damage caused by such activities or their failure as well as international cooperation and possible decision making processes.

When Humans Become Migrants Marie-Bénédicte Dembour, 2015 The issue of migration presents clear challenges to international human rights courts due to its political sensitivity. This book contrasts the European and Inter American Courts of Human Rights showing how their rulings differ on this issue. It argues that the Inter American Court's approach is more sympathetic to the individuals involved.

Domestic Application of the ECHR Eirik Bjorge, 2015-10-22 Domestic courts are entrusted with the application of the European Convention on Human Rights ECHR as faithful trustees of the rights protected in the Convention This book analyses the way in which the domestic courts in the United Kingdom France and Germany apply the ECHR and how applying the Convention they define their relationship with the European Court of Human Rights Contrary to what others have contended the book argues that it is not true descriptively nor desirable normatively that the domestic courts approach the ECHR based upon friction and assertion of sovereignty vis vis the European Court The proper role played by the domestic courts and the one which they have taken on them to perform in fact is to apply the Convention in all good faith building on the principles of the Convention as set out in the jurisprudence of the European Court But if domestic courts are in a position to apply the ECHR in the first place it is because the application of the Convention has been entrusted to them by the other organs of the municipal state in certain cases municipal principles of the separation of powers have an important bearing on domestic interpretation and application of the Convention Domestic Application of the ECHR Courts as Faithful Trustees shows that through their faithful application of the ECHR domestic courts can and do make a positive contribution to the development of the law of the Convention

Exclusion from Protection as a Refugee Yao Li, 2017-09-11 In Exclusion from Protection as a Refugee Yao Li analyses Article 1F of the 1951 Refugee Convention She argues that the exclusion clause is a quasi punitive provision and must therefore be interpreted with due regard to International Criminal Law Having developed an interpretation approach to consider external legal notions Li provides a solution for all the relevant issues in the context of Article 1F based on a harmonizing interpretation The study therefore not only comprehensively examines the exclusion clause at the intersection of International Refugee Law and International Criminal Law but also contributes to anti fragmentation efforts in International Law
