Collins, 2012-12-06 This book presents a philosophical position examined philosophically Although it does not go beyond the confines of Ficino's perspective and is governed by standards of historical accuracy it makes explicit in its explanation of Ficino's text the enduring philosophical questions which are at issue there True the book examines in some detail Ficino's relation to his Platonic and Scholastic sources and this is an issue of primary interest to those who study the history of culture or the historical development of philosophy However in Ficino's thought this issue is also a philosophical issue Ficino chooses Platonism as his guide because this philosophy retains an explicit and essential orientation to religion When he takes Platonism as the primary instance of philosophy he is taking a stand on the nature of philosophy itself Philosophy necessarily points toward the divinity and hence is necessarily related to the veneration and worship of its object Christian theology joins Platonic philosophy in this movement toward God developing more completely the implications of its fundamental insights And the 1st splendor of Christian theology is Thomas Aquinas Therefore to examine the relationship between Platonism and Thomism in Ficino's thought is to examine Ficino's position on the unity of philosophy and theology Scholars writing about Ficino have pointed to three major influences on his thought The influence of Plato and the neo Platonists of course is readily recognized The Broadview Anthology of Social and Political Thought , Navy and Army Illustrated , 1901 Teleology, First Principles, and Scientific Method in Aristotle's Biology Allan Gotthelf, 2012-02-23 This volume presents an interconnected set of sixteen essays four of which are previously unpublished by Allan Gotthelf one of the leading experts in the study of Aristotle's biological writings Gotthelf addresses three main topics across Aristotle's three main biological treatises Starting with his own ground breaking study of Aristotle's natural teleology and its illuminating relationship with the Generation of Animals Gotthelf proceeds to the axiomatic structure of biological explanation and the first principles such explanation proceeds from in the Parts of Animals After an exploration of the implications of these two treatises for our understanding of Aristotle's metaphysics Gotthelf examines important aspects of the method by which Aristotle organizes his data in the History of Animals to make possible such a

Forms of Life Martin Price, 1983-01-01 The novel contains imagined lives that achieve a kind of meaning and intensity our own lives do not Out of the novelist's moral imagination the breadth and depth of his awareness of human motivations tensions and complexities emerge fictional persons through whom we learn to read ourselves This eloquent book exploring fictional lives in crucial moments of choice and change stresses both their difference from and their deep connections with life Martin Price writes here about ways in which character has been conceived and presented in the novels of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Beginning with chapters that cogently argue the artistic value of character Price then deals with the different forms character has taken in individual novels His first discussions center on authors Jane Austen Stendhal Charles Dickens George Eliot and Leo Tolstoy who define individuals by their adherence or opposition to social norms The next chapters deal with novelists for whom the moral world is largely internalized The characters of Henry James Joseph Conrad D H Lawrence and E M Forster live in society and act upon it but the authors are particularly concerned with the confusions terrors and heroism that lie within consciousness The last chapter uses novels about the artist by James Joyce Virginia Woolf and Thomas Mann in order to apprehend the process by which experience is transformed into art Avoiding both formalistic and moralistic extremes this new book by a distinguished critic helps us recover a fuller sense of literary form and the forms of life from which it emerges
