Going Universal Daniel Cotlear,Somil Nagpal,Owen Smith,Ajay Tandon,Rafael Cortez,2015-09-25 The quest for universal health coverage UHC has gathered real momentum over the past decade with countries on every continent now taking part This is welcome news since a lack of universal coverage means that hundreds of millions of people around the world either do not get the health care services they need or they have to pay dearly for them often falling into poverty as a result But the UHC agenda also poses an enormous challenge to policy makers across the globe and many countries are eager to learn from the experiences of others as they undertake the long journey toward UHC

Going Universal How 24 Developing Countries Are Implementing Universal Health Coverage Reforms from the Bottom Up draws on a wealth of new evidence to help enrich the global knowledge base on UHC It provides a synthesis of UHC reform programs that placed a special focus on expanding coverage in ways inclusive of the poor The main objective was to document and analyze their experiences based on a systematic data collection effort that sought to capture in great detail how they have been implementing UHC reforms The main chapters offer an in depth analysis of how countries are addressing five key challenges covering people expanding benefits managing money improving the supply of health care services and strengthening accountability The UHC reform programs described in the volume are new massive and transformational Most were launched during the past decade and together they now cover more than 2 billion people But most importantly the authors find that the programs are fundamentally changing the way health systems operate offering the potential to achieve greater equity and better results for the money spent The authors identify key risks that lie ahead as well as an emerging agenda that requires more country and global learning Overall this book offers those contributing to the achievement of UHC worldwide a valuable new resource to help chart a way forward

The Bumpy Road to Universal Health Coverage Martin Eckhardt, 2018-07-26 Background By the turn of the new millennium 84% of families in rural coastal Ecuador had difficulties to access health services A health reform some years earlier to improve this situation had not been implemented In 2001 the non governmental organization NGO Foundation Human Nature together with a rural population established a primary health care center in North Western Ecuador A public private partnership with the Ministry of Public Health was formed Services depended on out ofpocket payments restricting the poor s access to care In order to increase access to primary and emergency care Foundation Human Nature planned to establish a community based health insurance In the meantime a major health reform was initiated by a new government in 2008 It aimed at universal health coverage providing qualitative services for all based on primary health care while ensuring protection from financial hardship The aims of this thesis were to appraise the feasibility of community based health insurance in Ecuador to study how rural stakeholders perceived the 2008 reform and its effects on rural health services to explore the local population s perception of the NGO in service delivery and to measure the scope and describe the nature of perceived emergencies the related health care seeking behavior and health expenditure Methods Quantitative and qualitative methods were applied to tackle the research objectives Data collection for the health insurance study and the study of perceived emergencies was carried out through cross sectional household surveys For each of the studies 210 households were sampled with two stage cluster sampling Structured questionnaires were used with on the spot household interviews Focus group discussions with local stakeholders were performed to explore their perceived effects of the 2008 health reform The population s perception of the NGO was also studied through focus group discussions which were complemented by key informant interviews with local stakeholders Inductive qualitative content analysis focusing on the manifest content was applied Results 69% of interviewees were willing to join the presented community based health insurance scheme for 30 US per household and year Attitudes towards the scheme were positive and 92% of interviewees stated they would increase their health service utilization with affiliation The implementation of the 2008 health reform was perceived as topdown lacking communication However the reform s effects were mainly perceived as positive with free medical attendance and drugs Increased service utilization was described as leading to a relative shortage of drugs and appointments Access problems for remote dwellers were found who were described of having to seek private care also in emergencies The NGO and its services were perceived positively by the population due to health care improvements in the region The structure of the public private partnership was unclear leading to dissatisfaction Community participation was found to be rather weak Perceived emergencies occurred to at least 90 1 000 inhabitants in the past year Fever traumatic injury and abdominal pain were the most frequent chief complaints The first contacted providers in 57% of all cases were private for profit providers including traditional healers Public health services treated one third of all cases Health expenditure was found to be high and catastrophic health expenditure occurred in 24% of all cases

Conclusions Prior to the 2008 reform community based health insurance was found to be feasible in the study region This financing instrument may have a role in the post reform system to cover services that the government does not yet sufficiently provide The effects of the 2008 reform were mainly perceived positively but an adjustment of the system is needed to improve the relative lack of drugs and appointments especially for remote dwellers Free health services may not be sufficient to reach universal health coverage for patients with perceived emergencies Changes in public emergency departments and improved financial protection for emergency patients may improve the situation The NGO s role was perceived positively by the population A lack of communication about the public private partnership and relatively weak community participation restricted the NGO s full potential and should be improved
