of non violent Islamist extremism allegedly include groups and individuals associated with the Muslim Brotherhood and Jama'at al Islami. They have been described as part of the global Muslim Brotherhood but do they constitute a singular phenomenon or a social movement? This book shows that such groups and individuals do indeed comprise a movement in Britain, one dedicated to an Islamic revival. It shows how they are networked organisationally, bonded through ideological and cultural kinship and united in a conflict of values with the British society and state. Using original interviews with prominent revivalist leaders as well as primary sources, the book also shows how the movement is not so much Islamist in aspiring for an Islamic state but concerned with institutionalising an Islamic worldview and moral framework throughout society. The conflict between the Government and the global Muslim Brotherhood is apparent in a number of different fields including education, governance, law and counterterrorism. But this does not simply concern the direction of Government policy or the control of state institutions. It most fundamentally concerns the symbolic authority to legitimise a way of seeing, thinking and living. By assessing this multifaceted conflict, the book presents an exhaustive and up to date analysis of the political and cultural fault lines between Islamic revivalists and the British authorities. It will be useful for anyone studying Islam in the West, government counter terrorism and counter extremism policy, multiculturalism and social cohesion.

Trapped in Between

Ahmad Faisal, 2006. Trapped In Between is about the global realities in managing projects. It is about people trying to understand what makes their project work or makes it worse. Project managers discovered that attempting to balance projects purely on technical and financial viabilities were never good enough and has often led to many disappointments. The circus of project failures demanded that somebody or something take the fall. Set against a typical major global company in Malaysia, this book amplifies the underlying realities that affect projects and project management as a whole. It is about the DOP Syndrome that suffered by many fresh bloods induced into the company and the realities of project politics that has long rooted within many organisations. If juggling the projects basing on just technical and financial realities are project managers' nightmares, inclusion of political realities will make any project manager delusional.
