The Classics in Black and White Kenneth W. Goings, Eugene O'Connor, 2024-05-15 Following emancipation African Americans continued their quest for an education by constructing schools and colleges for Black students mainly in the U S South to acquire the tools of literacy but beyond this to enroll in courses in the Greek and Latin classics then the major curriculum at American liberal arts colleges and universities Classically trained African Americans from the time of the early U S republic had made a link between North Africa and the classical world therefore from almost the beginning of their quest for a formal education many African Americans believed that the classics were their rightful legacy The Classics in Black and White is based extensively on the study of course catalogs of colleges founded for Black people after the Civil War by Black churches largely White missionary societies and White philanthropic organizations Kenneth W Goings and Eugene O Connor uncover the full extent of the colleges classics curriculums and showcase the careers of prominent African American classicists male and female and their ultimately unsuccessful struggle to protect the liberal arts from being replaced by Black conservatives and White power brokers with vocational instruction such as woodworking for men and domestic science for women This move to eliminate classics was in large part motivated by the very success of the colleges classics programs As Goings and O Connor s survey of Black colleges curriculums and texts reveals the lessons they taught were about more than declensions and conjugations they imparted the tools of self formation and self affirmation

Fifty-Second Annual Catalogue, 1919-1920 Normal and Agricultural Institute, 2017-01-20 African Americans and the Classics Margaret Malamud, 2019-01-24 A new wave of research in black classicism has emerged in the 21st century that explores the role played by the classics in the larger cultural traditions of black America Africa and the Caribbean Addressing a gap in this scholarship Margaret Malamud investigates why and how advocates for abolition and black civil rights both black and white deployed their knowledge of classical literature and history in their struggle for black liberty and equality in the United States African Americans boldly staked their own claims to the classical world they deployed texts ideas and images of ancient Greece Rome and Egypt in order to establish their authority in debates about slavery race politics and education A central argument of this book is that knowledge and deployment of Classics was a powerful weapon and tool for resistance as improbable as that might seem now when wielded by black and white activists committed to the abolition of slavery and the end of the social and economic oppression of free blacks The book significantly expands our understanding of both black history and classical reception in the United States Congressional Land Scrip Robert William
