Hampshire Second World War Photographs:

Lee Miller, Photography, Surrealism and the Second World War Lynn Hilditch, 2018-01-23 Lee Miller 1907 1977 was an American born Surrealist and war photographer who through her role as a model for Vogue magazine became the apprentice of Man Ray in Paris and later one of the few women war correspondents to cover the Second World War from the frontline. Her comprehensive understanding of art enabled her to photograph vivid representations of Europe at war, the changing gender roles of women in war work, the destruction caused by enemy fire during the London Blitz and the horrors of the concentration camps that embraced and adapted the principles and methods of Surrealism. This book examines how Miller's war photographs can be interpreted as surreal documentary, combining a surrealist sensibility with a need to inform. Each chapter contains a close analysis of specific photographs in a generally chronological study with a thematic focus, using comparisons with other photographers, documentary artists and Surrealists such as Margaret Bourke White, Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, George Rodger, Cecil Beaton, Bill Brandt, Henry Moore, Humphrey Jennings and Man Ray. In addition, Miller's photographs are explored through Andr  Breton's theory of convulsive beauty, his credence that any subject, no matter how horrible, may be interpreted as art, and his notion of the marvellous.

Hampshire in the Second World War from Old Photographs John Leete, 2017-01-19 Hampshire's role in the Second World War is explored in this fascinating selection of old photographs.

Hampshire's Military Heritage Dean Hollands, 2018-07-15 Hampshire's Military Heritage looks at the military legacy of this county on land, by air and at sea from Roman times to the present day.

Yateley in the Great War Peter J. Tipton, 2018-07-30 There were fewer than 500 houses in Yateley in WWI but with Aldershot, Farnborough, Camberley and Sandhurst close by, this Hampshire village's response to the call to arms was more prepared than most and punched above its weight. Using contemporary evidence from many sources researched by our local history team, the Yateley Society recreates the impact of the War on our predecessors. The story of the men who left Yateley to fight territorials, regulars, volunteers and conscripts is told alongside that of the battalions of Kitcheners' New Armies training in trench warfare on Yateley Common. At the same time, in the three private houses forming the Yateley Military Hospital, Yateley women of all ages were tending wounded soldiers. With its intimate glimpses into village life, this book will fascinate anyone with Yateley connections. The names of many families in the village of 100 years ago are here, while for recent newcomers, with perhaps a Victorian or Edwardian house, there may be clues to the history of your homes. With its many illustrations and maps, this exploration of the social network and social consequences of the Great War on a small community in North East Hampshire has interest for historians and general readers alike.

Holocaust Images and Picturing Catastrophe Angi Buettner, 2016-12-05 Holocaust Images and Picturing Catastrophe explores the phenomenon of Holocaust transfer analysing the widespread practice of using the Holocaust and its imagery for the representation and recording of other historical events in various media sites It investigates the use of Holocaust imagery in political and legal discourses in critical thinking and philosophy as well as in popular culture to provide a fresh theorisation of the manner in which the Holocaust comes loose from its historical context and is applied to events and campaigns in the contemporary public sphere Richly illustrated with concrete examples including prominent international animal rights activism the Israeli Palestinian conflict and the genocide in Rwanda this book traces the visual rhetoric of Holocaust imagery and its application to events other than the genocide of Jewish people With its discussion of the wide range of issues arising with this form of Holocaust transfer the generalization of the Holocaust as a metaphor in representations of catastrophe as well as in other cultural locations Holocaust Images and Picturing Catastrophe will appeal to those working in the fields of holocaust studies cultural and visual culture studies sociology and media studies

The Wessex Hillforts Project Andrew Payne, Mark Corney, Barry Cunliffe, 2014-06-15 The earthwork forts that crown many hills in Southern England are among the largest and most dramatic of the prehistoric features that still survive in our modern rural landscape The Wessex Hillforts Survey collected wide ranging data on hillfort interiors in a three year partnership between the former Ancient Monuments Laboratory of English Heritage and Oxford University These defended enclosures occupied from the end of the Bronze Age to the last few centuries before the Roman conquest have long attracted archaeological interest and their function remains central to study of the Iron Age The communal effort and high degree of social organisation indicated by hillforts feeds debate about whether they were strongholds of Celtic chiefs communal centres of population or temporary gathering places occupied seasonally or in times of unrest Yet few have been extensively examined archaeologically Using non invasive methods the survey enabled more elaborate distinctions to be made between different classes of hillforts than has hitherto been possible The new data reveals not only the complexity of the archaeological record preserved inside hillforts but also great variation in complexity among sites Survey of the surrounding countryside revealed hillforts to be far from isolated features in the later prehistoric landscape Many have other less visible forms of enclosed settlement in close proximity Others occupy significant meeting points of earlier linear ditch systems and some appear to overlie or be located adjacent to blocks of earlier prehistoric field systems

Forgotten Voices Of The Second World War Max Arthur, 2012-06-30 The Imperial War Museum holds a vast archive of interviews with soldiers sailors airmen and civilians of most nationalities who saw action during WW2 As in the highly acclaimed Forgotten Voices of the Great War Max Arthur and his team of researchers spent hundreds of hours digging deep into this unique archive uncovering tapes many of which have not been listened to since they were created in the early 1970s The result will be the first complete oral history of World War 2 We hear at first from British German and Commonwealth soldiers and civilians Accounts of the impact of U S involvement after Pearl Harbour and the major effects it had on the war in Europe and the Far East is chronicled in startling detail including compelling interviews from U S and British troops who fought against the Japanese Continuing through from D Day to the Rhine Crossing and the dropping of the Atom Bomb in August 1945 this book is a unique testimony to one of the world s most dreadful conflicts One of the hallmarks of Max Arthur s work is the way he involves those left behind on the home front as well as those working in factories or essential services Their voices will not be neglected

In the Picture Donat Gallagher, Carlos Villar Flor, 2014-11-15 Evelyn Waugh at war is an irresistibly fascinating subject as are his war novels and diaries Drawn to units offering the greatest danger but often frustrated in his search for action Waugh served in multiple regiments saw battle on Crete and worked behind the lines in occupied Croatia In the Picture traces Waugh s experiences both vivid and mundane with a completeness never before attempted and shows how they come alive in Sword of Honour It also illuminates the brief hints within the narrative of key events of the war while highlighting its strategic direction Waugh s individualistic relationships with superiors subordinates and public opinion led to blame and controversy Working mainly from archival sources In the Picture examines Waugh s fitness to be an officer his conduct on Crete his being sacked from the Special Service Brigade and his service in Croatia New very surprising discoveries dispel entrenched myths

Photography, Music and Memory Michael Pickering, Emily Keightley, 2015-10-12 This book explores how photography and recorded music act as vehicles or catalysts in processes of remembering and how they are regarded treated valued and drawn upon as resources connecting past and present in everyday life It does so via two key concepts vernacular memory and the mnemonic imagination
