Contextualising Narrative Inquiry Sheila Trahar, 2013-04-02 Narrative inquiry is growing in popularity as a research methodology in the social sciences medicine and the humanities In narrative inquiry the transparency of interactions between researcher and research participants together with rich contextual descriptions help to shape and structure research texts rendering them engaging and readable Contextualising Narrative Inquiry argues that all researchers should foreground the importance of the context in which research takes place and develop methodological approaches that are grounded in their local contexts To do so they need to pay attention to how knowledge is constructed shared and understood in those contexts This is particularly important when contexts have been subjugated historically through colonialism and when local indigenous ways of knowing have been ignored or dismissed The contributors to this edited collection have all used narrative inquiry for a range of topics and in a range of contexts including Leadership styles of Asian women The Deaf community in the UK Voluntary celibacy in Malta Administrators in Ghanaian higher education Multiculturalism in primary education in Cyprus Teacher identities in Hong Kong The reflective practitioner in higher education in Malaysia The diversity of the topics illuminates the potential for narrative inquiry to be used to investigate a broad range of issues in many contexts by people with a wide range of backgrounds A common thread throughout is a reflexive discussion of how each contributor used narrative inquiry as a methodological approach highlighting not only its affordances but also the complexities of using it in specific cultural social and historical contexts

Eggen, Gordon Stobart, 2015-10-14 High stakes educational testing is a global phenomenon which is increasing in both scale and importance Assessments are high stakes when there are serious consequences for one or more stakeholders Historically tests have largely been used for selection or for providing a licence to practise making them high stakes for the test takers Testing is now also used for the purposes of improving standards of teaching and learning and of holding schools accountable for their students results These tests then become high stakes for teachers and schools especially when they have to meet externally imposed targets More recent has been the emergence of international comparative testing which has become high stakes for governments and policy makers as their education systems are judged in relation to the performances of other countries In this book we draw on research which examines each of these uses of high stakes testing The articles evaluate the impact of such assessments and explore the issues of value and fairness which they raise To underline the international appeal of high stakes testing the studies are drawn from Australia Africa the Caribbean Europe former Soviet republics and North America Collectively they illustrate the power of high stakes assessment in shaping for better or for worse policy making and schooling This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment in Education Principles Policy Practice Interviewing Kathryn Roulston, 2021-10-06 This book provides guidance to researchers about how to develop interview skills that align with their theoretical assumptions Connecting theory and method can be challenging for novice researchers Interviewing A Guide to Theory and Practice draws from and extends the author's earlier 2010 book and focuses on three interrelated issues how researchers theorize research interviews examine their subject positions in relation to projects and participants and explore the details of interview interaction to inform practice By developing these understandings of qualitative interview practice Kathryn Roulston shows how researchers can design and conduct quality research projects that draw on a wide range of interview practices to provide audience members and communities with significant findings concerning social problems
