

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Quick (Moses) toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Quick starts out as a racist, but as the movie progresses, he becomes more open-minded and accepting of African-Americans. This change is due to his own experiences and the influence of the other soldiers, particularly Trip Tucker, who is a white soldier who is a racist but who is also a good person.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? Think about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background.

The 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry is a regiment of black soldiers who are from different parts of the United States. They have different backgrounds, including being enslaved, free, and educated.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

White soldiers had a variety of attitudes toward the 54th. Some were racist and saw them as inferior, while others were more open-minded and saw them as equals.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less, given less food, and were often treated with disrespect and discrimination.

5. What is significant about Colonel Quick's decision to refuse to go south?

Colonel Quick's decision to refuse to go south is significant because it shows that he is a man of principle and that he is willing to stand up for what is right, even if it means losing his job.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings? Explain what you felt.

The incident ended as I expected. I felt that the 54th was a brave and noble regiment and that they deserved the same respect and treatment as the white soldiers. I also felt that the movie was a good representation of the experiences of African-Americans during the Civil War.
