Healthcare professionals have become increasingly aware of their rapidly growing influence and impact on change effort itself. As recently as yesterday's study showed in the "Top 100 Most Influential Healthcare Professionals" survey, the general public ranked a physician's influence as being slightly less than that of a nurse's. This is a significant change from the 1990s when physicians were ranked as the most influential healthcare professionals. This change reflects the growing role of nurses in patient care and the increasing importance of nursing in the healthcare system.
