Ageing, Corporeality and Embodiment Chris Gilleard, Paul Higgs, 2014-11-01 Ageing Corporeality and Embodiment outlines and develops an argument about the emergence of a new ageing during the second half of the twentieth century and its realisation through the processes of embodiment The authors argue that ageing as a unitary social process and agedness as a distinct social location have lost much of their purchase on the social imagination Instead this work asserts that later life has become as much a field for not becoming old as of old age The volume locates the origins of this transformation in the cultural ferment of the 1960s when new forms of embodiment concerned with identity and the care of the self arose as mass phenomena Over time these new forms of embodiment have been extended changing the traditional relationship between body age and society by making struggles over the care of the self central to the cultures of later life

Images of Aging Mike Featherstone, Andrew Wernick, 2003-09-02 We all have a finite life span We are born we get old and we die Given the universality of the ageing process it is remarkable that there is almost a complete absence of study of culture and self image of the middle aged and old Images of Ageing Cultural Representations of Later Life changes this The contributors discuss images of ageing which have come to circulate in the advanced industrial societies today They address themes such as body and self image in everyday interaction experience and identity on old age advertising and consumer culture images of the elderly images of ageing used by Government agencies in health education campaigns the diversity of historical representations of the elderly gender images of ageing images of senility and second childhood images of health illness and death

Age and the Reach of Sociological Imagination Dale

Dannefer,2021-08-09 The dominant narratives of both science and popular culture typically define aging and human development as self contained individual matters failing to recognize the degree to which they are shaped by experiential and contextual contingencies Our understandings of age are thereby boxed in and constricted by assumptions of normality and naturalness that limit our capacities to explore possible alternative experiences of development and aging and the conditions

both individual and social that might foster such experiences Combining foundational principles of critical social science with recent breakthroughs in research across disciplines ranging from biology to economics this book offers a scientifically and humanly expanded landscape for apprehending the life course Rejecting familiar but false dichotomies such as nature vs nurture and structure vs agency it clarifies the organismic fundamentals that make the actual content of experience so centrally important in age and development and it also explores why attention to these fundamentals has been so resisted in studies of individuals and individual change and in policy and practice as well In presenting the basic principles and reviewing the current state of knowledge Dale Dannefer introduces multi levelled social processes that shape human development and aging over the life course and age as a cultural phenomenon organizing his approach around three key frontiers of inquiry that each invite a vigorous exercise of sociological imagination the Social Structural Frontier the Biosocial Frontier and the Critical Reflexive Frontier

The novel begins with Richard Papen, a bright but troubled young man, arriving at Hampden College. Richard is immediately drawn to the group of students who call themselves the Classics Club. The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a masterful and suspenseful novel that will keep you speculating until the very end. The novel is a cautionary tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
