Simmons, 1971 The Memorandum contains a description and summary of preliminary properties of eleven new alloys that are considered to be promising high temperature materials. Most of them are in the experimental application stage of their development; however, a few have reached the point where they can be considered commercial. Included are six nickel base alloys, two iron base alloys, one iron nickel base alloy, one cobalt base alloy, and one multicomponent alloy that contains primarily nickel and chromium. Following descriptions of composition and microstructure of each alloy, a large section of the memorandum is concerned with physical and mechanical properties, predominantly stress rupture and creep properties. Oxidation and sulfidation, as well as elevated temperature stability of the alloys, is discussed. Information on processing and availability of the alloys is also given.
