Japanese Issei immigrants arrived in Florin in the 1890s after attempts at profitable strawberry cultivation by Florin landowners had failed. By 1905 however Issei farmers had developed effective techniques for growing strawberries that delivered a resurgence of the crop. The Issei farmers discovered that Florin's shallow hardpan grew strawberries and grapes well; these fruits would blossom into Florin's major cash crops and lead to the crowning of Florin as the strawberry capital of the world. But Japanese successes were hard earned in the face of racist organizations such as the Asiatic Exclusion League and laws like Executive Order 9066 signed by Pres Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1942. Florin was a community with a majority of Japanese Americans but their forced removal mandated by Roosevelt's order dealt a crushing blow to the bustling agricultural town as many Florin families never returned. The Japanese American Archival Collection JAAC was established in 1994 as an educational partnership between California State University Sacramento CSUS and the Florin Japanese American Citizens League JACL. The content collection was led by Florinite Mary Tsukamoto, an educator, author, and activist who was sent with her family to Japanese American concentration camps between 1942 and 1945.

Personal Narratives of Teacher Knowledge Betty C. Eng, 2022-01-01. This book illustrates how the experiential histories of teachers shape and inform the knowledge of teachers as professionals. Situating personal experiences into the context of social, political, and economic events gives clarity to the intercultural dynamics of being Chinese and Western. What can we learn from each other to transform our teaching and learning? The book engages in a cross-cultural perspective that is highly relevant for teachers, teacher education, curriculum making, and policy planning for a global community. The book is also an invitation to internationalize the classroom for teaching and learning in a diverse and global world and to educators and policy makers to expand our understanding of cross-cultural complexities for an increasingly diversified and global community. By viewing the classroom through the multiple lens of different cultures, educators have an opportunity to cross over to see experience and understand how others live.

This is the story of a woman who wielded imagination and hope in the face of intolerance and who transformed everything she touched into art. She survived adolescence in the World War II Japanese American internment camps and attended the groundbreaking art school at Black Mountain College.
