Transcription and Translation

Transcription is the process of copying a segment of DNA into an RNA molecule. This process is carried out by the enzyme RNA polymerase, which binds to the DNA double helix and synthesizes a complementary RNA strand.

Translation is the process of synthesizing a protein from an mRNA template. This process is carried out by the ribosome, which reads the mRNA sequence and assembles the corresponding amino acids into a polypeptide chain.

Transcription and translation are the two main processes of gene expression, which allow the genetic information stored in DNA to be used to produce functional proteins.
