TITANIC RAMS ICEBERG

On April 14, 1912, the RMS Titanic, a British passenger liner, sank in the North Atlantic Ocean after colliding with an iceberg. The ship, which was on its maiden voyage from Southampton, England, to New York City, was carrying over 2,200 passengers and crew. The collision occurred at 11:40 p.m., and the ship began to sink within minutes. The sinking of the Titanic is one of the most famous maritime disasters in history. The ship was built by Harland and Wolff for the White Star Line. It was the largest ship in the world at the time, with a length of 269 meters (882 feet) and a displacement of 52,310 tons. The ship was carrying 2,204 people, including 1,517 passengers and 687 crew members. Only 705 people survived the sinking. The disaster led to significant changes in maritime safety, including the introduction of the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS) in 1914.

The world's worst-ever aircrash

The world's worst-ever aircrash occurred on December 31, 1978, when a Boeing 747-200, flight 007, crashed into the mountains of Japan. The aircraft was on a flight from New York City to Tokyo, and was carrying 261 passengers and 24 crew members. The crash resulted in the deaths of all 285 people on board. The aircraft was flying at a low altitude and was unable to avoid the mountains. The crash was caused by a combination of factors, including pilot error and a malfunctioning autopilot system. The crash led to significant changes in aviation safety, including the introduction of the International Convention on the Suppression of Acts of Piracy in 1988.
