Greek and Roman Artillery Eric William Marsden,1971 Five Greek and Latin treatises with a facing English translation which enable Marsden to trace mechanical progress in Greek and Roman artillery over five hundred years Each text and translation is followed by extensive notes which contain explanatory diagrams which reconstruct the machines Additional chapters discuss and reconstruct the 4th century ballista and the onager based on a range of sources Greek and Roman Artillery Eric William Marsden,1969 Defining a piece of artillery as a relatively complex engine powered by springs of resilient metal composed of several mechanical devices and designed to hurl bolts or shot over the longest possible range Marsden presents a comprehensive account of the development and historical employment of ancient artillery from its invention in 399 BC to the collapse of the Roman Empire in the West c AD 400 Among the many topics raised are the influence of the introduction of artillery on warfare the organization of artillery by states and monarchs the obtaining of artificers and the training of artillery men by ancient governments and the effects of artillery on the design of fortifications The work is based on the Greek and Latin texts describing the construction of catapults ballistae and other machines translated in Greek and Roman Artillery Technical Treatises Stymphalos Gerald P. Schaus,2014-01-01 The buildings and artefacts uncovered by Canadian excavations at Stymphalos 1994 2001 shed light on the history and cult of a small sanctuary on the acropolis of the ancient city The thirteen detailed studies collected in Stymphalos The Acropolis Sanctuary illuminate a variety of aspects of the site Epigraphical evidence confirms that both Athena and Eileithyia goddess of childbirth were worshipped in the sanctuary between the fourth and second centuries BCE The temple and service buildings are modest in size and materials but the temple floor and pillar shrine suggest that certain stones and bedrock outcrops were held as sacred objects Earrings finger rings and other jewelry along with almost 100 loomweights indicate that women were prominent in cult observances Many iron projectile points arrowheads and catapult bolts suggest that the sanctuary was destroyed in a violent attack around the mid second century possibly by the Romans A modest sanctuary in a modest Arcadian city state the acropolis sanctuary at Stymphalos will be a major point of reference for all archaeologists and historians studying ancient Arcadia and all southern Greece in the future Catalog of Printed Books of the Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington, D. Dept. of Printed Books,1967 Greek and Roman Artillery 399 BC-AD 363 Duncan B Campbell,2003-11-21 The catapult katapultikon was invented under the patronage of Dionysius I tyrant of Syracuse in the 4th century bc At first only the arrow firing variant was used and it was not until the reign of

Alexander the Great that stone projecting catapults were introduced The Romans adopted these weapons during the Punic Wars and further developed them before introducing the new arrow firing ballista and stone throwing onager This title traces the often controversial design development and construction of these weapons throughout the history of the classical world
