Quick Automatic Operation

The SB-26 uses a special autofocus system to focus the light on the subject. The autofocus system is controlled by a sensor that detects the distance between the light and the subject. The sensor sends a signal to the autofocus system, which then adjusts the lens to focus the light on the subject. This system allows you to take pictures of subjects at various distances without having to manually adjust the lens. The autofocus system also allows you to take pictures of subjects that are moving, as the sensor can detect the movement and adjust the lens accordingly.
