He realizes that this fish is very very large He prays that he will be able to manage it and that his hand will uncramp As he drifts further out and with nothing to occupy his time he begins to wishes that he could fall asleep and dream about the lions because they are the only thing left He misses getting to read the baseball scores and he compares himself in his mind to the great DiMaggio who plays with a bone spur in his heel just as he is fishing with a cramped arm The old man catches glimpses of the fish and knows that he is huge He feels as though he is starting to lose his senses and fervently hopes that the fish dies and not him He reminds himself again and again to keep a clear head As the fish pulls close to the boat the old man grabs his harpoon and spears him as hard as he can He drives the harpoon deeply into the fishs chest he sense that the fish has his death in him The fish dies floating to the surface of the ocean The old man thinks the fish must be at least fifteen hundred pounds Its eyes are as detached as a saints The old man is running out of food and water so he runs the line through the giant fishs gills and begins to tow him home But as they are on their way when the old man becomes aware of a shark alongside the boat The shark lunges for the fish taking a chunk out of it for lunch When the fish is mutilated the old man feels as though he has been mutilated The old man guesses he has lost about forty pounds of fish from the blow and that other sharks will be coming Buy a copy to keep reading CHAPTER OUTLINE Quicklet On Ernest Hemingway s The Old Man and the Sea About the Novel About the Author Overall Plot Summary Summary and Analysis and much more Santiago's Cup of Coffee Gregory J.
