Spaces for Highly Mobile People Bruna Vendemmia, 2020-05-21 This book explores how emerging mobility practices have transformed spaces in order to fit the needs of highly mobile people as well as the changing relationship between people and territory It establishes an interdisciplinary and a multiscale approach to mobility analysis and mobility design through the application of a mobile method of research Drawing on mobile people in Italy the book highlights how influential movers appropriate and configure space for their own needs centring their activities on continuous but distant places and configuring territories with uncertain and evolving limits This change of perspective allows us to redefine the concept of mobility space including all the spaces that support the development of emerging mobility practices It also encourages new perspectives on the way in which the relationship between the individual and territory is evolving into a less sedentary way of inhabiting space This book will be of interest to architects urban scientists and sociologists as well as postgraduate students who are interested in understanding how mobilities are transforming contemporary cities and territories

Contemporary Art About Architecture Nora Wendl, 2017-07-05 An important resource for scholars of contemporary art and architecture this volume considers contemporary art that takes architecture as its subject Concentrated on works made since 1990 Contemporary Art About Architecture A Strange Utility is the first to take up this topic in a sustained and explicit manner and the first to advance the idea that contemporary art functions as a form of architectural history theory and analysis Over the course of fourteen essays by both emerging and established scholars this volume examines a diverse group of artists in conjunction with the vernacular canonical and fantastical structures engaged by their work I Mangano Ovalle Matthew Barney Monika Sosnowska Pipa Nguyen duy and Paul Pfeiffer are among those considered as are the compelling questions of architecture's relationship to photography the evolving legacy of Mies van der Rohe the notion of an architectural unconscious and the provocative concepts of the unbuilt and the unbuildable Through a rigorous investigation of these issues Contemporary Art About Architecture calls attention to the fact that art is now a vital form of architectural discourse Indeed this phenomenon is both pervasive and in its individual incarnations compelling a reason to think again about the entangled histories of architecture and art

Applied Theatre and the Permacrisis Peter O'Connor,Katy Pérez,2025-06-20 Responding to the global state of permacrisis this book explores the relationship between applied theatre and disaster For millennia communities have learnt to live alongside disaster through their arts making Building on the basis of this ancestral knowledge this book explores the current uses of applied theatre in times of constant crisis Using a critical disaster studies lens the authors recognise the role of governments and multinational businesses in profiteering from and manipulating for their own advantage the misery caused by disasters Case studies of different stages of disaster from risk reduction and disaster preparedness through to the almost inevitable resistance to failed government intervention illustrate the possibilities and limitations of applied theatre and other art forms to navigate these times Applied theatre is seen as a vital act of aesthetic and political hope At a time of never ending overlapping disasters this book will be important to researchers and postgraduate students working in applied theatre and disaster research in the social sciences It will also appeal to applied arts practitioners who work in disaster zones and with relief organisations

Learning from Logistics Clare Lyster,2016-02-22 In the 19th century railroads and canals provided both structure and motor for city development This role has been taken over today by the global flow of data and products as the author argues Flow of material and communication is the DNA of contemporary environments This development has enormous and partially unfathomable implications for our city fabric Logistics networks and their complex structure increasingly bear upon many urban spheres Counter trends to the ubiquitous internet retail trade to name one of the most palpable phenomena are gaining momentum as well exemplified by the criticism of labor conditions in e commerce and the trend to buy regional products from local stores The author describes the current development and its impact on architecture landscape architecture and urbanism Aspects such as today s hypermobility of both products and people have repercussions in design work and create new paradigms for architecture and urban design Concepts for the integration of these new issues are introduced by a number of exemplary urban design projects

Making Place Arijit Sen,Lisa Silverman,2021-12-22 An analysis of how city dwellers interact with their social and materials worlds in everyday life and how this affects their bodies Space and place have become central to analysis of culture and history in the humanities and social sciences Making Place examines how people engage the material and social worlds of the urban environment via the rhythms of everyday life and how bodily responses are implicated in the making and experiencing of place The contributors introduce the concept of spatial ethnography a new methodological approach that incorporates both material and abstract perspectives in the study of people and place and encourages consideration of the various levels from the personal to the planetary at which spatial change occurs The book s case studies come from Costa Rica Colombia India Austria Italy the United Kingdom and the United States Rich diverse and provocative meditations on place and identity formation it builds on the previous scholarship on bodies memory and place while also moving our understanding of this theme in a refreshing and engaging direction Abidin Kusno University of British Columbia

The Nature of the Path Marcus Filippello, 2017-01-17

The Nature of the Path reveals how a single road has shaped the collective identity of a community that has existed on the margins of larger societies for centuries Marcus Filippello shows how a road running through the Lama Valley in Southeastern Benin has become a mnemonic device that has allowed residents to counter prevailing histories Built by the French colonial government and following a traditional pathway the road serves as a site where the h ri people narrate their changing relationship to the environment and assert their independence in the political milieus of colonial and postcolonial Africa Filippello first visited the Yor b speaking h ri community in Benin knowing only the history in archival records Over several years he interviewed more than 100 people with family roots in the valley and discovered that their personal identities were closely tied to the community which in turn was inextricably linked to the history of the road that snakes through the region s seasonal wetlands The road contested welcomed and obstructed over many years passes through fertile farmlands and sacred forests both rich in meaning for residents Filippello s research seeks to counter prevailing notions of Africa as an exotic and pristine yet contrarily war torn disease ridden environmentally challenged and impoverished continent His informants vivid construction of history through the prism of the road coupled with his own archival research offers new insights into Africans complex understandings of autonomy identity and engagement in the slow process we call modernization

Company Suburbs Sarah Fayen Scarlett, 2023-08-18 Winner of the 2022 Fred B Kniffen Book Award from the International Society Landscape Place and Material Culture and the 2023 Abbott Lowell Cummings Award from the Vernacular Architecture Forum Michigan s Keweenaw Peninsula juts into Lake Superior pointing from the western Upper Peninsula toward Canada Native peoples mined copper there for at least five thousand years but the industrial heyday of the Copper Country began in the late nineteenth century as immigrants from Cornwall Italy Finland and elsewhere came to work in mines largely run from faraway cities such as New York and Boston In those cities suburbs had developed to allow wealthier classes to escape the dirt and grime of the industrial center In the Copper Country however the suburbs sprang up nearly adjacent to mines mills and coal docks Sarah Fayen Scarlett contrasts two types of neighborhoods that transformed

Michigan's mining frontier between 1875 and 1920 paternalistic company towns built for the workers and elite suburbs created by the region's network of business leaders Richly illustrated with drawings maps and photographs Company Suburbs details the development of these understudied cultural landscapes that arose when elites began to build housing that was architecturally distinct from that of the multiethnic workers within the old company towns They followed national trends and created social hierarchies in the process but also uniquely incorporated pre-existing mining features and adapted company housing practices This idiosyncratic form of suburbanization belies the assumption that suburbs and industry were independent developments Built environments evince interrelationships among landscapes people and power Scarlett's work offers new perspectives on emerging national attitudes linking domestic architecture with class and gender identity Company Suburbs complements scholarship on both industrial communities and early suburban growth increasing our understanding of the ways hierarchies associated with industrial capitalism have been built into the shared environments of urban areas as well as seemingly peripheral American towns

Dwelling in Mobile Times Sybille Frank,Lars Meier,2019-05-16
In an era of increasing mobilities places of residence are still vital Unlike commuting migrating or travelling dwelling usually evokes at least in modern Western thought the idea of an immobile private place to rest This book explores the places spaces and practices of dwelling in mobile times and considers dwelling under the umbrella of broader transformations in society The manifestations of these transformations are carved out on the level of everyday practices and experiences Bringing together eight case studies from Europe the USA and Asia on subjects such as gentrification homelessness and displaced persons multi local and diasporic lifeworlds professional elites and tourism the book explores various and complex entanglements of mobilities and dwelling in detail In doing so the contributors critically analyse who may be or has to be mobile under which circumstances at present This book thus demonstrates that mobility is more than movement between localities and that to dwell is more than to be at a locality Instead mobilities and dwelling are both shaped and challenged by strong but shifting power relations and are thus deeply contested This book was originally published as a special issue of Cultural Studies

Immigrant Industry Anoma Pieris, Mirjana Lozanovska, Dr Alexandra Dellios, Andrew Saniga, 2024-08-02 After the end of the Second World War migrants were critical to the spatial making of modern Australia Major federally funded industries driving postwar nation building programs depended on the employment of large numbers of people who had been displaced by the war Directed to remote rural and urban industrial sites migrant labor and resettlement altered the nation's physical landscape providing Australia with its contemporary economic base While the immigrant contribution to nation building in cultural terms is well known its everyday spatial architectural and landscape transformations remain unexamined This book aims to bring to the foreground postwar industry and immigration to comprehensively document a uniquely Australian shaping of the built environment
