Language Policy And Nation Building In Post Apartheid South Africa:

Language Policy and Nation-Building in Post-Apartheid South Africa Jon Orman, 2008-08-27 The preamble to the post apartheid South African constitution states that South Africa belongs to all who live in it united in our diversity and promises to lay the foundations for a democratic and open society in which government is based on the will of the people and every citizen is equally protected by law and to improve the quality of life of all citizens This would seem to commit the South African government to amongst other things the implementation of policies aimed at fostering a common sense of South African national identity at societal development and at reducing of levels of social inequality However in the period of more than a decade that has now elapsed since the end of apartheid there has been widespread discontent with regard to the degree of progress made in connection with the realisation of these constitutional aspirations The limits to liberation in the post apartheid era has been a theme of much recent research in the fields of sociology and political theory e.g. Luckham 1998 Robins 2005a Linguists have also paid considerable attention to the South African situation with the realisation that many of the factors that have prevented and are continuing to prevent effective progress towards the achievement of these constitutional goals are linguistic in their origin

Language and National Identity in Africa Andrew Simpson, 2008-02-07 This book focuses on language culture and national identity in Africa. Leading specialists examine countries in every part of the continent: Egypt, Morocco, Sudan, Senegal, Mali, Sierra Leone, Ghana, Ivory Coast, Nigeria, Cameroon, Congo, Kenya, Tanzania, Zambia, South Africa, and the nations of the Horn of Africa: Ethiopia, Eritrea, Djibouti, and Somalia. Each chapter describes and examines the country's linguistic and political history and the relation of its languages to national, ethnic, and cultural identities and assesses the relative status of majority and minority languages and the role of language in ethnic conflict. Of the book's authors, fifteen are from Africa and seven from Europe and the USA. Jargon-free, fully referenced, and illustrated with seventeen maps, this book will be of value to a wide range of readers in linguistics, politics, history, sociology, and anthropology. It will interest everyone wishing to understand the dynamic interactions between language and politics in Africa in the past and now.

Language in Contemporary African Cultures and Societies Leonard Muaka, Esther Mukewa Lisanza, 2018-12-03 Language in Contemporary African Cultures and Societies examines language in contemporary Africa by positioning language at the center of interrelationships between individuals, society, and culture. Because of how language permeates every aspect of human existence within each society, this book has assembled contributions by researchers and scholars who focus on different topics within African languages and cultures. By presenting African languages as resources and subject and object of the study, this book discusses Africa's multilingualism, language policy, preservation, and their uses in development, security, liberation, and identity formation in the diaspora. Based on empirical research and analysis of texts, this book takes a closer look at the continent and the diaspora by situating African languages, cultures, and literatures at the center and shows how African languages are used in the liberation, transfer of knowledge, and promotion of literacy among Africans globally. It is a book that seeks to bridge the gap between the continent and the diaspora. All contributors are experienced scholars of language, literature, education, and linguistics. The chapters provide a major means for examining the interplay of language, literature, and education.

Language Maintenance and Shift Anne Pauwels, 2016-08-04 What motivates some linguistic minorities to maintain their language? Why do others shift away from it rather quickly? Are there specific conditions, environmental or personal, influencing these dynamics? What can families and communities do to pass on their threatened language to the next generation? These and related questions are investigated in detail in Language Maintenance and Shift. In this fascinating book, Anne Pauwels analyses the patterns of language use exhibited by individuals and groups living in multilingual societies and explores their efforts to maintain their heritage or minority language. She explores the various methods used to analyse language maintenance, from linguistic demography to linguistic biography, and offers guidance on how to research the language patterns and practices of linguistic minorities around the world.

The Fate of Mood and Modality in Language Death

Petar Kehayov, 2017-07-24 Research into the grammar of language death is often biased toward formal processes e.g. paradigmatic levelling. In this study the author changes the perspective and shows that the relative susceptibility of linguistic elements to loss, change and innovation in language death circumstances can be dependent on meaning and thus organized along semantic notions rather than along structure.

The Routledge Handbook of Translation and Politics Jonathan Evans, Fruela Fernandez, 2018-04-19 The Routledge Handbook of Translation and Politics presents the first comprehensive state of the art overview of the multiple ways in which politics and translation interact. Divided into four sections with thirty three chapters written by a roster of international scholars, this handbook covers the translation of political ideas, the effects of political structures on translation and interpreting, the politics of translation and an array of case studies that range from the Classical Mediterranean to contemporary China. Considering established topics such as censorship, gender, translation under fascism, translators and interpreters at war, as well as emerging topics such as translation and development, the politics of localization, translation and interpreting in democratic movements and the politics of translating popular music, the handbook offers a global and interdisciplinary introduction to the intersections between translation and interpreting studies and politics. With a substantial introduction and extensive bibliographies, this handbook is an indispensable resource for students and researchers of translation theory, politics and related areas.

English as a Changing Medium for Education Constant Leung, Brian V. Street, 2012-07-25 In this volume a range of authors from different international contexts argue that the notion of communicative competence in English, hitherto largely referenced to metropolitan native speaker norms, has to be expanded to take account of diverse contexts of use for a variety of purposes. It also discusses the popular belief that language and literacy should simply be regarded as a technical skill which confers universal benefits and that it should be replaced with a social practice view that recognises situated variations and diversity. This volume, we believe, provides a reference point for extended research and practice in these areas that will be of interest to a wide range of people engaged in language and literacy education.

South Africa's Shakespeare and the Drama of Language and Identity Adele Seeff, 2018-07-13 This volume considers the linguistic complexities associated with Shakespeare's presence in South Africa from 1801 to early twentieth century, televisual updating of the texts as a means of exploring individual and collective forms of identity. A case study approach demonstrates how Shakespeare's texts are available for ideologically driven linguistic programs. Seeff introduces the African Theatre Cape Town in 1801, multilingual site of the first recorded performance of a Shakespeare play in Southern Africa where rival amateur theatrical groups performed in turn in English, Dutch, German and French. Chapter 3 offers three vectors of a broadening Shakespeare diaspora in English, Afrikaans and Setswana in the second half of the nineteenth century. Chapter 4 analyses Andr  Brink's Kinkels innie Kabel as a transposition of Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors into Kaaps as a radical critique of apartheid's obsession with linguistic and ethnic purity. Chapter 5 investigates John Kani's performance of Othello as a Xhosa warrior chief with access to the ancient tradition.

Challenges of Globalisation Johan Muller,Nico Cloete,Shireen Badat,2001 An intellectual record of a riveting dialogue between the highly acclaimed Manuel Castells and South African scholars Comparing Refugees and South Africans in the Urban Informal Sector Jonathan Crush,Godfrey Tawodzera,2017-09-28 This report compares the business operations of over 2 000 South Africans and refugees in the urban informal economy and systematically dispels some of the myths that have grown up around their activities First the report takes issue with the perception that South Africans are inexperienced and unmotivated participants in the informal economy Many have years of experience and have successfully grown their businesses Second it contests the view that refugees enjoy a competitive advantage because they come to South Africa with inherent talent and already honed skills On the contrary over 80% of those surveyed had no prior informal sector experience and learned their skills on the job and after coming to South Africa Third the report shows that there is fierce competition in the urban informal sector between and within the two groups However business competition between refugees and South Africans is mitigated by the fact that they tend to dominate different sections of the informal economy with South Africans dominant in the food sector and refugees in the household products and personal services sectors Finally the report takes issue with recent arguments that all informal sector businesses are equally at risk from robbery extortion and other crimes It shows that South Africans are affected but that refugees are far more vulnerable than their South African counterparts The report therefore confirms that xenophobia and xenophobic violence are major threats to refugees seeking a livelihood in the informal sector especially if they venture into informal settlements Reflections on Identity in Four African Cities S. B. Bekker,Anne Leildé,2006 Identity has become the watchword of our times In sub Saharan Africa this certainly appears to be true and for particular reasons Africa is urbanising rapidly cross border migration streams are swelling and globalising influences sweep across the continent Africa is also facing up to the challenge of nurturing emergent democracies in which citizens often feel torn between older traditional and newer national loyalties Accordingly collective identities are deeply coloured by recent urban as well as international experience and are squarely located within identity politics where reconciliation is required between state nation building strategies and sub national affiliations They are also fundamentally shaped by the growing inequality and the poverty found on this continent These themes are explored by an international set of scholars in two South African and two Francophone cities The relative importance to urban residents of race class and ethnicity but also of work space and language are compared in these cities This volume also includes a chapter investigating the emergence of a continental African identity A recent report of the Office of the South African President claims that a strong national identity is emerging among its citizens and that race and ethnicity are waning whilst a class identity is in the ascendance The evidence and analyses within this volume serve to gauge the extent to which such claims ring true in what everyone knows is a much more complex and shifting terrain of shared meanings than can ever be captured by such generalisations

Migration, Remittances and Development in Lesotho Jonathan Crush,Belinda Dodson,2010-07-17

The relationship between migration development and remittances in Lesotho has been exhaustively studied for the period up to 1990 This was an era when the vast majority of migrants from Lesotho were young men working on the South African gold mines and over 50 percent of households had a migrant mineworker Since 1990 patterns of migration to South Africa have changed dramatically The reconfiguration of migration between the two countries has had a marked impact on remittance flows to Lesotho The central question addressed in this report is how the change in patterns of migration from and within Lesotho since 1990 has impacted on remittance flows and usage
