Red Dragon Rising: Shadows of War Larry Bond, Jim DeFelice, 2010-09-28 An American scientist is on the run in the jungles of Vietnam as world powers prep for war in this thriller by two New York Times bestselling authors. An adrenaline fueled multilayered thriller that cuts right to the chase. Constant action makes this a must read for military adventure fans. Publishers Weekly. In the not too distant future massive climate change has wracked the globe. China's rice growing regions have been devastated by typhoons while its western breadbasket is suffering from three years of drought. Riots threaten to tear the country apart. With the old guard Chinese government paralyzed by the crisis a young charismatic party leader steps to the fore. His solution to the unrest is a time tested one: conquest of China's neighbors. And after that the world. Josh MacArthur a mild mannered American scientist studying climate change in northern Vietnam is the only witness to a clever attempt by the Chinese to make it appear that Vietnam started the war. Escaping a massacre he manages to gather critical evidence that could turn world opinion against China. Unfortunately the Chinese learn of MacArthur's survival and of the information he carries. A former Chinese fighting monk turned commando is sent to capture him. Mara Duncan a CIA agent is also on MacArthur's trail. The American scientist has become the subject of a deadly race in the jungles of northern Vietnam with that fate of the world in his hands. The authors have done their homework using clips from newspaper reports to heighten the realistic feel and producing a thriller that reads like an account of true events. Fans of military thrillers especially Clancy's are the built in audience for this one. Booklist
