Latrobe Valley Heritage Study Chris Johnston, 1991 Latrobe City heritage study 2008 ,2008 Heritage Making and Migrant Subjects in the Deindustrialising Region of the Latrobe Valley Alexandra Dellios, 2022-03-31 This Element argues that community initiated migrant heritage harbours the potential to challenge and expand state sanctioned renderings of multiculturalism in liberal nation states In this search for alternative readings community initiated migrant heritage is positioned as a grassroots challenge to positivist state multiculturalism It can do this if we adopt the migrant perspective a diasporic perspective of settlement that is always unfinished non static and non essentialist As mobile subjects either once or many times over a subject position arrived at through acts of mobility sometimes spawned by violence or structural inequality which can reverberate throughout subsequent generations the migrant subject position compels us to look both forwards and backwards in time and place Australian National Bibliography: 1992 National Library of Australia, 1988 Heritage and Design Pamila Gupta, 2022-09-01 This Element looks at the relationship between heritage and design by way of a case study approach It offers up ten distinct portraits of a range of heritage makers located in Goa a place that has been predicated on its difference both historical and cultural from the rest of India A former Portuguese colonial enclave 1510 1961 surrounded by what was formerly British India 1776 1947 the author attempts to read Goa s heritage as a form of place ness a source of inspiration for further design work that taps into the Goa of the twenty first century The series of portraits are visual literary and sensorial and take the reader on a heritage tour through a design landscape of villages markets photography festivals tailors and clothing books architecture painting and decorative museums They do so in order to explore heritage futures as increasingly dependent on innovation design and the role of the individual

Constructing Industrial Pasts Stefan Berger, 2019-09-01 Since the 1960s nations across the developed world have been profoundly shaped by deindustrialization In regions in which previously dominant industries faced crises or have disappeared altogether industrial heritage offers a fascinating window into the phenomenon's cultural dimensions As the contributions to this volume demonstrate even as forms of industrial heritage provide anchors of identity for local populations their meanings remain deeply contested as both radical and conservative varieties of nostalgia intermingle with critical approaches and straightforward apologies for a past that was often full of pain exploitation and struggle

Heritage, Education and Social Justice Veysel Apaydin, 2022-12-01 This research examines how museums and heritage sites can embrace a social justice approach to tackle inequalities and how they can empower disadvantaged groups to take an equal benefit from cultural resources This Element argues that heritage institutions can use their collections of material culture more effectively to respond to social issues and examines how they can promote equal access to resources for all people regardless of their backgrounds This research examines heritage and museum practices ranging from critical and democratic approaches to authoritarian practices to expose the pitfalls and potentials therein By analysing case studies examining institutions current efforts and suggesting opportunities for further development with regard to social justice this Element argues that heritage sites and museums have great potential to tackle social issues and to create a platform for the equal redistribution of cultural resources the recognition of diversities and the representation of diverse voices Australia's Fossil Heritage , The Australian Heritage Council,2012-07-18 The National Heritage List was created in January 2004 to recognise celebrate and protect places of outstanding heritage value to the nation National heritage encompasses those places that reveal the richness of Australia s extraordinarily diverse natural historic and Indigenous heritage One aspect of natural heritage that has been little explored is Australia s wealth of exceptional fossil sites While a small number of fossil sites have risen to public prominence there are many lesser known sites that have important heritage values The Australian Heritage Council engaged palaeontologists from state museums and the Northern Territory Museum and Art Gallery to compile lists of outstanding fossil sites and to document their characteristics and relative importance against a range of categories with a view to further our understanding about Australia s important fossil heritage Sites that were listed for National or World Heritage values were not included in the places for consideration with the focus being on lesser known but still important sites This book is an account of the palaeontologists findings Some of the sites that were included in the initial lists have since been recognised through listing on the National Heritage List or the World Heritage List Australia s Fossil Heritage provides a useful reference to the outstanding fossil sites it catalogues and gives a clearer understanding of the heritage values of such sites More generally it contributes to a greater appreciation of Australia s geological and fossil diversity and enables readers to learn more about Australia s prehistory New Avenues for Regional Innovation Systems - Theoretical Advances, Empirical Cases and Policy Lessons Arne Isaksen,Roman Martin,Michaela Trippel,2018-03-01 This book discusses the latest theoretical advances in regional innovation research presents empirical cases involving the development of regional innovation systems RISs and explores regional innovation policy approaches Grounded in the extensive literature on RISs it addresses state of the art developments in light of recent theoretical advances in economic geography and related disciplines Written in honor of Bj rn Asheim s seventieth birthday the book includes novel and carefully selected chapters prepared by collaborators colleagues and former PhD students of one of the founding fathers of RIS research Further it makes a significant contribution to the academic debate on regional innovation and growth and offers valuable insights for scholars and policymakers alike Mining Heritage and Tourism Michael Conlin, Lee Jolliffe,2010-10-04 Many former mining areas have now lost their industrial function and are now turning to tourism for regional revitalization and community economic development The transformation process of these industrial and in some cases derelict mining sites and landscapes into an area of interest for tourists is a major challenge both for planners and for tourism managers. It involves complex consideration to both the preservation of the physical site and community mining heritages as well as the health safety and environmental factors inherent in opening these vast sites to the public. Mining Heritage and Tourism includes contributions from internationally recognized authorities and is the first book to focus on the issues, challenges and potentials in redeveloping mines as cultural heritage attractions which are explored thematically throughout the book. It draws on multidisciplinary research to consider the dichotomy between heritage preservation and tourist development goals for mining heritage sites as well as to explore the practical challenges of developing these sites. These themes are illustrated by case studies from a vast range of geographical locations around the globe to offer operational insights into the planning and management of these sites for both heritage and tourism purposes as well as innovative site management techniques. There has never before been a more comprehensive book on mining heritage tourism representing the latest developments in strategy, policy and practices. This book serves as an invaluable guide for students, researchers, academics and practitioners in the areas of Tourism and Heritage Management.

Geopolitics of Digital Heritage Natalia Grincheva, Elizabeth Stainforth, 2024-01-31. Geopolitics of Digital Heritage analyzes and discusses the political implications of the largest digital heritage aggregators across different scales of governance from the city state governed Singapore Memory Project to a national aggregator like Australia's Trove to supranational digital heritage platforms such as Europeana to the global heritage aggregator Google Arts & Culture. These four dedicated case studies provide focused exploratory sites for critical investigation of digital heritage aggregators from the perspective of their geopolitical motivations and interests, the economic and cultural agendas of involved stakeholders as well as their foreign policy strategies and objectives. The Element employs an interdisciplinary approach and combines critical heritage studies with the study of digital politics and communications. Drawing from empirical case study analysis, it investigates how political imperatives manifest in the development of digital heritage platforms to serve different actors in a highly saturated global information space ranging from national governments to transnational corporations.

Here and Now at Historic Sites David Ludvigsson, Martin Stolare, Cecilia Trenter, 2024-05-31. The study explores the meaning making of cultural heritage in school field trips to five sites in the region of Skåne in Sweden. It treats the materiality of the place and experiences of the guides and the pupils obtained in school as well as in other contexts as meaning making resources during the site visits. It emphasises that sites should be seen as processes open to interpretations and reinterpretations. The visitor is steered by expectations and common values as well as by the ways in which the heritage site is displayed and presented. In the present study, both adults, guides and children, pupils are defined as visitors. The authors draw on theories from history education research and from heritage studies when interpreting how pupils encounter heritage sites; they underline the centrality of the flesh and embodied agency in the experience of sites.
