Library of the Linnean Society of London Linnean Society of London, Linnean Society of London. Library,1925      Anatomy Museum Elizabeth Hallam,2016-06-15 The wild success of the traveling Body Worlds exhibition is testimony to the powerful allure that human bodies can have when opened up for display in gallery spaces But while anatomy museums have shown their visitors much about bodies they themselves are something of an obscure phenomenon with their incredible technological developments and complex uses of visual images and the flesh itself remaining largely under researched This book investigates anatomy museums in Western settings revealing how they have operated in the often passionate pursuit of knowledge that inspires both fascination and fear Elizabeth Hallam explores these museums past and present showing how they display the human body whether naked stripped of skin completely dissected or rendered in the form of drawings three dimensional models x rays or films She identifies within anatomy museums a diverse array of related issues from the representation of deceased bodies in art to the aesthetics of science from body donation to techniques for preserving corpses and ritualized practices for disposing of the dead Probing these matters through in depth study Anatomy Museum unearths a strange and compelling cultural history of the spaces human bodies are made to occupy when displayed after death

Making and Growing Elizabeth Hallam,Tim Ingold,2016-05-13 Making and Growing brings together the latest work in the fields of anthropology and material culture studies to explore the differences and the relation between making things and growing things and between things that are made and things that grow Though the former are often regarded as artefacts and the latter as organisms the book calls this distinction into question examining the implications for our understanding of materials design and creativity Grounding their arguments in case studies from different regions and historical periods the contributors to this volume show how making and growing give rise to co produced and mutually modifying organisms and artefacts including human persons They attend to the properties of materials and to the forms of knowledge and sensory experience involved in these processes and explore the dynamics of making and undoing growing and decomposition The book will be of broad interest to scholars in the fields of anthropology archaeology material culture studies history and sociology     Observing the Moon Peter T. Wlasuk, 2013-04-17 Why write another guide to observing the Moon That was the question I was pondering as I began this project having a fine collection of classic lunar guidebooks dating back to 1791 in my own library As a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society RAS member of the American Astronomical Society's Division for Planetary Sciences AAS DPS and member of the American Geophysical Union AGU I am fortunate to know many professional lunar scientists who keep me up to date with developments in lunar science contrary to public perception lunar science has definitely not stagnated since the last Apollo No 17 left the surface of the Moon in December 1972 I am also lucky to know many amateur lunar observers who like me enjoy actually looking at the Moon with telescopes and imaging it with a wide variety of devices ranging from regular 35 mm cameras to video recorders and CCD cameras My friends who study the Moon whether in their professions or just for fun gave me several reasons for doing another lunar guidebook First the last lunar observer's guide of any length was published over ten years ago and many reviewers noted that it was badly out of date even then     The Lancet London ,1853     The Lancet ,1901
