

... Your Body Move?

Your brain controls everything your body does. Some things you have to think about doing, like buttoning your shirt. Your brain tells your fingers to move, and makes your eyes check over what your fingers are doing.

Other things, like breathing, you never have to think about. Your brain controls all the organs inside your body—heart, lungs, stomach, intestines—without using its “thinking” part.

Most of your brain is inside your skull, but part of your brain, called the spinal cord, is inside your backbone.
