The electrical system of the motor is a 3-phase and consists of a generator, voltage regulator, running motor, lights, light switch, and a battery (spark) unit with a 3-wire battery. The system is a single-wire-type with a ground return to the battery.

Use the illustrations on pages 91 and 92 and the wiring diagram on page 93 as a guide for identifying the various electrical units and for making the electrical cables and connections. Be sure all terminals are clean and properly fastened.

When the electrical equipment is removed at the factory, the factory ground cable is disconnected and taped. Before attempting to start the motor, make certain that the ground cable is reconnected.

A coverage gap (GFI-29) has been located in the line running between the light switch and the common. If a short circuit occurs in the lighting circuit the line will burn out and break the circuit, preventing damage to the electrical system.

It is important to test the meter regularly for the replacement. If the light fails, check the fuse. If the fuse continually burns out, check the electrical wiring for short circuits.

To install a new line, construct the line bearing on the permanent panel (filled in), pull out the old line and replace it with a new one.
