Urban Deer Havens Clark E. Adams, Cassandra LaFleur Villarreal, 2020-05-06

Urban Deer Havens consists of a thorough examination of selected cervid deer species that are known to inhabit urban communities in the United States. The deer species that are included in this presentation consisted of white-tailed Odocoileus virginianus, Key deer O. v. clavium, moose Alces alces, elk Cervus elaphus, mule deer Odocoileus hemionus, and black-tailed deer O. h. columbianus. This book is the first attempt to examine the similarities and differences in those factors that allow the selected cervids to exist and thrive in urban habitats. This information has never been collected, collated, reviewed, and published under one cover document. Yet all five are known to inhabit urban communities within their geographic range. The lack of information concerning several important examples of urban cervids in conjunction with a proliferation of information on white-tailed deer only is an incomplete and biased presentation. This book is the first comprehensive source of information on urban deer management, which includes a broad assemblage of urban cervids. The overall objective of this book is to provide a more holistic examination of urban cervids. For example, it examines the similarities and differences of the environmental impacts, management strategies, and human dimensions concerning urban cervids in general and using specific examples. Urban Deer Havens features four chapters that include Urban deer census techniques and population dynamics, Comprehensive tables that review urban community deer management plans, National and state-wide estimates of the five selected cervids, Laws and regulations concerning urban deer, Lethal and nonlethal management options for managing deer, Steps for managing urban deer populations, Examples of urban deer management efforts.

Local, Traditional and Indigenous Food Systems in the 21st Century to Combat Obesity, Undernutrition and Climate Change, 2nd edition Rebecca Kanter, Sofia Boza, Gina Kennedy, 2023-07-31

Traditional and indigenous food systems have existed for centuries and were in balance with local food supplies globally. However, between the mid 20th and early 21st century, the green revolution dramatically altered food production, which in turn affected the inclusivity of traditional production systems within food systems and subsequently traditional dietary intakes. This change was accompanied by lifestyle changes and spurred a global nutrition transition. Today, the world faces a global syndemic of obesity, undernutrition, and climate change. A new call to action to create food systems that nourish people and sustain the planet is needed. Traditional and indigenous food systems have long been recognized as systems that can both support good human nutrition as well as maintain a balance with nature. There is an underutilized knowledge base around traditional and indigenous food systems. This includes the knowledge of nutritious species, traditional culinary preparations, and cultural practices. Greater agricultural production of underutilized species can result in more sustainable agricultural and food systems, which can also help improve livelihoods and food security. Traditional and indigenous cultural practices with respect to both land and water management, as well as culinary practices, contribute to both sustainable food production and consumption. These practices require a greater evidence base in order to be incorporated into public health nutrition initiatives related to improving dietary quality, such as food based dietary guidelines for example An increased focus on the importance of local traditional and indigenous food systems and nutrition could therefore help countries to improve human nutrition and ideally help mitigate the global syndemic of obesity undernutrition and climate change This Research Topic will focus on documenting diverse local food systems and promoting elements within them that can help improve nutrition and health both human and planetary in various ways including the livelihood development of knowledge holders
